Cease-Fire Is Accepted By Laos Foes

Conference Seen Necessary To Set Date For Truce

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — A cease-fire was accepted Tuesday by the U.S.-backed government and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels but it appeared fighting will continue for several days. Neither side proposed a date for troops in the field to lay down their arms.

The government said it will "await the reaction of our opponents to see if they will make contact with us."

The Soviet news agency Tass in a dispatch from Hanoi, Communist North Viet Nam, reported Pathet Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong pledged to order his "armed forces to cease fire throughout the country." It mentioned no date.

Britain and the Soviet Union, who proposed the cease-fire, were sending invitations for a 14-nation conference May 12 in Geneva to negotiate for setting up an independent, neutral Laos.

Parley May Be Necessary

Both the Pathet Lao and Premier Boun Oum's government indicated a conference may be necessary even to arrange a cease-fire.

Foreign Minister Chao Sopsaisana told newsmen a site has not been agreed upon, but indicated he favored the royal capital of Luang Prabang in the north.

Neutralist ex-Premier Souvanna Phouma proposed all factions meet Friday in Xieng Khouang, in rebel-held northeastern Laos, for discussions on enlarging the government. Souphanouvong said he was ready to send a delegation but there was an immediate reaction in Vientiane, the administrative capital.

Souvanna, recognized by the Pathet Lao and the Communist bloc as Laos' legal premier, said in North Viet Nam he considers indispensible the formation of an "enlarged provisional coalition government" to rule Laos.

Royal officials said fighting continues in north and south-central Laos. But none of the clashes appeared serious to Western observers.

Rebel Troops Halted

Economic Minister Ngon Sananikone said rebel troops, who opened a strong drive southward over the weekend, have been halted at Ban Vang, 68 miles north of Vientiane.

He said Vang Vieng, a key government military headquarters north of Ban Vang, is in a no man's land between rebel and royal forces.

In London, Foreign Secretary Lord Home warned in Parliament it is essential both sides institute a cease-fire promptly and observe it to the letter.

He added that Britain, like the United States, will refuse to attend the Geneva conference if the rebels continue to gain ground during the truce.

They will join others of their countrymen to make about 850 Irishmen and 850 Swedes stationed in the capital of the separatist province.

CIA Accurate In Cuba Report, Official Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top U. S. official said Tuesday the Central Intelligence Agency correctly reported the Castro regime's military power and the temper of the Cuban people before President Kennedy okayed the anti-Castro invasion.

This statement clashed with views previously expressed by a number of administration authorities that intelligence errors contributed heavily to the failure of last week's landing attempt.

The contention of those critical of the CIA was that it considerably underestimated the strength of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's military forces and overstated the prospects of a popular uprising against the Castro government. The invaders were badly beaten and the hoped-for uprisings did not take place.

The conflicting opinions voiced by well-placed authorities indicated Kennedy's inquiry into the intelligence setup is likely to run into a welter of arguments. As an aftermath of the Cuban fiasco, Kennedy named Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army chief of staff, to head the inquiry.

According to the official who gave his view Tuesday, the CIA had correctly analyzed what was going on in Cuba and the strength of the Castro regime.

Quite accurate information was sent the White House on the general situation in Cuba, on the number of resistance forces there, what Castro had in his army, air force and navy, and the general temper of the country.

Also, this informant discussed the CIA intelligence on the insurrection by French generals in Algeria. A high official said Monday the United States had been caught by surprise. The informant said the U. S. government had no shortage of information that the French generals were displeased with the policies of President Charles de Gaulle.

House Okays $600 Million Latin Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday approved President Kennedy's $600 million development program for Latin America despite charges that recipient nations already have started ridiculing it as a "Castro bonus."

The House voted 330-82 to put up the money after the bill's sponsors said that U.S. help for Latin America's economic - social development was long overdue. They said such aid would have been necessary even if there was no Cuban crisis.

They defended the program against charges that it would be regarded by many Latin Americans merely as an attempt to buy their loyalties in this country's troubles with the Cuban regime of Premier Fidel Castro.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, also included $100 million to help repair last year's earthquake destruction in southern Chile.

The measure would provide $394 million for loans to Latin America to be handled through the Inter-American Bank, $6 million for the Organization of American States for planning and coordinating programs and $100 million in grants through the International Cooperation Administration.

Torrential Rainstorm Causes W. Va. Flooding

By United Press International

A torrential rainstorm ripped through the Northern Panhandle Tuesday dumping up to two inches of rain and causing flash floods throughout the area.

The Wheeling area was hardest hit by the flash floods as Wheeling Creek went over its banks in several sections. Several smaller streams were jammed up by floating debris and the water overflowed onto roads and into nearby homes.

Capt. H. A. Lash of the Wheeling Fire Department said Route 40 in the Valley Grove area, near the West Virginia - Pennsylvania line was covered by four feet of water at one time.

He said occupants of two cars were stranded in the area when surging Wheeling Creek left its banks. Lash said boats were dispatched to the scene but the occupants had already been rescued by the time they got there.

Route 2 north of Wheeling was also underwater in several sections. When traffic resumed it had to move at a snails pace because of the deluge.

In the Greggsville area, debris and floating logs jammed up a creek and the backwater washed into many nearby homes.

Follansbee, in Brooke County, was also hit hard by the flash floods.

The Parkersburg and Fairmont areas reported fairly heavy rains but no immediate damage.

The Weather Bureau earlier had issued a warning of severe weather conditions for parts of the Mountain State.

Launch Test Of Unmanned Capsule Fails

Plans For First U.S. Space Pilot Trip Unchanged

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An Atlas rocketing an unmanned Mercury capsule toward orbit veered off course and was destroyed Tuesday. But U. S. space agency officials said this would not delay the launching of America's first space man, expected next Tuesday.

Nor will the spectacular failure prevent the United States from placing a man in orbit before the end of the year, said Robert Gilruth, director of Project Mercury for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Next week's scheduled firing is to launch a space pilot on a suborbital flight which will take him 115 miles up and 300 miles down range in 16 minutes. A smaller Redstone rocket will be used for this mission.

Capsule Undamaged

The 3,000-pound Mercury capsule was blasted away from the Atlas booster seconds before the explosion and was recovered undamaged.

"We are confident a man in the capsule could have survived," Gilruth said. "This will in no way change our plan to stay with the Atlas as a booster for manned orbit launchings."

The explosion came 40 seconds after the Atlas was fired at 11:15 a.m. Chunks of blazing metal showered down on the launching area and one of them started a fire. The capsule parachuted into the Atlantic Ocean about 350 yards off shore.

Astronaut Donald Slayton, one of seven chosen for future rides in space, watched the explosion from a nearby control center.

Has Confidence In Atlas

Later he told a news conference: "It was disappointing, of course, but it was gratifying to see the way the capsule recovery system works. I have lost no confidence in the Atlas booster. I gained a great deal of confidence in the recovery system."

Gilruth's statement was an obvious attempt to scotch speculation the failure dealt the United States a severe setback in its race to catch up with the Soviet Union, which recovered a man from orbit less than two weeks ago.

There was no immediate word on what caused the Atlas malfunction. An official reported merely that the safety officer destroyed it because it was off course.

Kennedy Wins Support Of Rockefeller, Truman

N.Y. Governor Calls For Unity In Cuban Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has won the support of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and former President Harry S. Truman in his effort to present a united front against Communist threats in Cuba and elsewhere.

Rockefeller, the Republican governor of New York, met with Kennedy for an hour at the White House Tuesday and said on emerging: "I think it is time for all Americans to stand united behind the President in support of whatever action becomes necessary to defend freedom."

Truman conferred with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday and pledged his support for "the course of courage," as Johnson phrased it.

This completed the roster of top leaders in both political parties who have been briefed by the Kennedy administration on the acute developments in Cuba, Laos and elsewhere.

Mutual Trust Needed

Johnson, declaring that free men unite best when they know the facts, said in a statement: "The administrating is taking steps to be sure that leaders of both our political parties are completely aware of what is going on. There will be no evasions or avoidance of unpleasant facts. This is a partisan matter only in the sense that all of us, Republicans and Democrats alike, are partisans of freedom. So long as we can operate in mutual trust and understanding we need have no fears of the future. This country has a job to do and we and all our allies are going to do it."

Just how the job of recovering from last week's setback in Cuba is going to be done apparently was the subject of intense discussion on several levels of government. No decisions were announced.

There was talk of hitting Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba with a total trade embargo, the Navy began beefing up its Atlantic Coast fleet, and two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee called for a Latin-American summit conference.

Concerted Action Proposed

The senators, Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Kennedy should seek a quick meeting of the heads of Latin-American countries to map concerted action in the Cuban crisis.

Hickenlooper, senior Republican on the Latin-American Affairs subcommittee, cited the delivery of Soviet supplies to Castro as evidence that a foreign power has "definitely invaded this area."

He said the Organization of American States could mount a "powerful and successful mobilization against the Communist regime in Cuba" that could resolve the situation rapidly.

Morse endorsed the proposal for an OAS meeting, but said he did not believe the United States should take direct action against the Castro government. The two senators were interviewed on a CBS radio news program, "Leading Question."

German Jews Tell Of Abuse By Eichmann

JERUSALEM (UPI)— Adolf Eichmann tongue-lashed leaders of Germany's Jewish community with "obscene and abusive language" and threatened them with the concentration camp, the court trying him for the murder of six million Jews was told Tuesday.

Benno Cohn, last chairman of the Zionist organization in Germany before World War II, testified that Eichmann screamed at him: "You old swine, crook!"

"He used most abusive and obscene language—words I have never heard before," Cohn told the court in describing a 1939 meeting at Berlin secret police headquarters between Eichmann and leaders of the Jewish community.

Another former German Jewish leader, Aaron Walter Lindenstrauss, testified that Eichmann summoned heads of the Jewish community in Vienna, lined them up in front of him and ordered them "in very coarse language" to speed up emigration of Jews.

Eichmann, seated in his bullet proof glass box, smiled faintly and scribbled notes as he listened to the testimony.

Earlier, the court heard extracts from an affidavit by Eichmann's former aide, Dieter Wisliceny, written in a Nuernberg war crimes jail in 1946, charging him with being a "coward."

Wisliceny, who was hanged as a war criminal in 1947, said Eichmann was fanatical in his desire to kill Jews but was too timid to take any action without express orders from his superior officers.

Washington Hails Victory By De Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official Washington was obviously cheered Tuesday night by news from Paris and Algiers that the Algerian revolt had collapsed.

Authorities privately expressed hope that French President Charles de Gaulle would now be able to move forward again in his quest for a settlement of the Algerian crisis.

Neither the White House nor the State Department had any formal comment, although Secretary of State Dean Rusk said "it is always a great help to the free world to see France strong and unified."

Rusk spoke to newsmen before taking off for the April 27-29 Central Treaty Organization meeting at Ankara, Turkey. The organization is an alliance of Britain, Turkey, Iran and Pakistan.

The attitude of the American government toward the French situation had already been made emphatically clear by President Kennedy who offered De Gaulle any assistance he might want in putting down the revolt.

To some authorities here it seemed certain De Gaulle's success in smashing the uprising would strengthen his position in seeking a negotiated settlement for the future of Algeria. American officials believe such a settlement would enable France to play a much more effective role in building up the defenses of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe. The bulk of French military power has been committed to the defense of French interests in Algeria for the last 6½ years.

De Gaulle's War Order Hastens End

Angry Civilians In Algiers Clash With Gendarmes

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The generals' revolt that pushed France to the brink of civil war collapsed Wednesday in the surrender of its leaders and the despair of diehard civilian settlers.

The end came with dramatic suddenness with the surrender of Gen. Maurice Challe while about 50,000 people milled on the giant Forum Square of Algiers, seething with rage and battling gendarmes.

Challe made a last despondent appearance on the balcony of the government building with Gen. Raoul Salan at his side. Then the two disappeared inside.

Challe, the brains of the insurrection, had already sent word to President Charles de Gaulle in Paris that he was at the disposition of the government.

The end of the revolt was hastened by President Charles de Gaulle's orders to wipe out the rebels with all means necessary—including warfare—to restore order.

The fate of Challe's fellow rebels remained in doubt but those chiefly responsible may be executed as traitors.

Salan Suicide Report False

The recaptured Algiers radio first had reported that Salan had committed suicide but the general then appeared with Challe.

The generals were deprived of even a farewell speech to the massed thousands on the square.

The microphones on the balcony were dead and their words were lost in the tumult, shooting and confusion of the midnight end to their desperate adventure.

In the final chaotic moments of the generals' revolt three gendarmes fell in the streets, wounded by fire from windows of surrounding apartments. The angry gendarmes returned the fire.

The paratroops who defiantly captured the government buildings Saturday were nowhere to be seen. They had pulled out of the center of Algiers earlier, leaving the way clear for gendarmes to move in.

The European population of Algiers—almost to a man behind the insurrection — was angry and stupified. Most of them had arms, and fights with the gendarmes were reported throughout the city.

The rebellion broke out without warning early last Saturday to enforce the European population's bitter determination to keep French rule firmly over Algeria in opposition to De Gaulle's course toward dealing with the Nationalists.

Radio Algiers Recaptured

De Gaulle already has opened the legal proceedings that could result in death sentences for all the insurgent leaders.

The French and Algiers radios, again linked for the first time since Saturday, carried a series of night-time announcements to spread the news.

In the announcement from De Gaulle's Elysee Palace there was no mention of the other top generals involved—Andre Zeller and Edmond Jouhaud.

It was just after midnight in Paris when the collapse of the rebellion became apparent.

Radio Algiers first reported the suicide of Salan and the surrender of Challe.

The voice of the insurgents, radio Algiers, was recaptured Tuesday night by French marines and immediately rejoined the French national network.

It reported Gaullist forces were taking over the French North African capital, the last major hold-

Tshombe Threatens To Quit Congo Talks

COQUILHATVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe threatened Tuesday to quit the Congolese leaders' conference here unless central government President Joseph Kasavubu agreed to cease all cooperation with the United Nations.

The Katanga leader stormed out of the opening session Monday after charging that Kasavubu had bowed to U.N. pressure and was "incapable of running the debate at the conference." His attack on Kasavubu left the conference near collapse.

"I will come back," Tshombe said Tuesday, "when you are ready to reply to my conditions." There was no indication, that he planned to leave immediately for Katanga.

Price-Fix Meetings Encouraged By GE Top Brass, Senate Investigators Told

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee heard testimony Tuesday that top brass in the General Electric Co. directed and encouraged illegal meetings with competitors to fix prices.

Three witnesses, all since fired by General Electric after a federal judge sentenced them for price fixing, told the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee that they had met with competitors on orders from superiors.

Their testimony identified Robert Paxton, a former GE president; Arthur F. Vinson, a vice president; and the late Henry V. Erben, a former executive vice president, as GE officials who ordered the meetings.

Much of the testimony, however, was based on indirect knowledge. In some cases, the witnesses testified they had been informed by others that these officials ordered the illegal meetings.

The most direct testimony came late in the day from George E. Burens, a former $127,000-a-year GE executive who was fined and sentenced to 30 days in jail after pleading guilty to government charges of price fixing.

Burens told the subcommittee that Erben and Paxton gave the instructions to meet with competitors. Burens, who was manager of GE's switchgear and control division, also testified that Erben had told him about a conversation he had had in 1952 with Ralph J. Cordiner, now board chairman of GE.

He quoted Erben as saying he told Cordiner that if the board chairman would not ask Erben to stop meeting with competitors, Cordiner would never hear about these meetings. Burens did not say what Cordiner's reply was.

As the subcommittee continued its hearings on price-fixing, President Kennedy aimed a blow at companies that attempt to rig prices when selling goods to the government.

Kennedy's action came in an executive order directing all agencies to report to the Justice Department all identical bids they receive on government contracts worth more than $10,000.

Prompt reporting, said Kennedy, "will discourage future submissions of such bids, aid in the enforcement of the antitrust laws and the maintenance of a competitive economy, and serve to reduce the cost to the government."

Kennedy Wins Support Of Rockefeller, Truman

N.Y. Governor Calls For Unity In Cuban Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has won the support of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and former President Harry S. Truman in his effort to present a united front against Communist threats in Cuba and elsewhere.

Rockefeller, the Republican governor of New York, met with Kennedy for an hour at the White House Tuesday and said on emerging: "I think it is time for all Americans to stand united behind the President in support of whatever action becomes necessary to defend freedom."

Truman conferred with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday and pledged his support for "the course of courage," as Johnson phrased it.

This completed the roster of top leaders in both political parties who have been briefed by the Kennedy administration on the acute developments in Cuba, Laos and elsewhere.

Mutual Trust Needed

Johnson, declaring that free men unite best when they know the facts, said in a statement: "The administration is taking steps to be sure that leaders of both our political parties are completely aware of what is going on. There will be no evasions or avoidance of unpleasant facts. This is a partisan matter only in the sense that all of us, Republicans and Democrats alike, are partisans of freedom. So long as we can operate in mutual trust and understanding we need have no fears of the future. This country has a job to do and we and all our allies are going to do it."

Just how the job of recovering from last week's setback in Cuba is going to be done apparently was the subject of intense discussion on several levels of government. No decisions were announced.

There was talk of hitting Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba with a total trade embargo, the Navy began beefing up its Atlantic Coast fleet, and two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee called for a Latin-American summit conference.

Concerted Action Proposed

The senators, Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said Kennedy should seek a quick meeting of the heads of Latin-American countries to map concerted action in the Cuban crisis.

Hickenlooper, senior Republican on the Latin-American Affairs subcommittee, cited the delivery of Soviet supplies to Castro as evidence that a foreign power has "definitely invaded this area."

He said the Organization of American States could mount a "powerful and successful mobilization against the Communist regime in Cuba" that could resolve the situation rapidly.

Morse endorsed the proposal for an OAS meeting, but said he did not believe the United States should take direct action against the Castro government. The two senators were interviewed on a CBS radio news program, "Leading Question."

German Jews Tell Of Abuse By Eichmann

JERUSALEM (UPI)— Adolf Eichmann tongue-lashed leaders of Germany's Jewish community with "obscene and abusive language" and threatened them with the concentration camp, the court trying him for the murder of six million Jews was told Tuesday.

Benno Cohn, last chairman of the Zionist organization in Germany before World War II, testified that Eichmann screamed at him: "You old swine, crook!"

"He used most abusive and obscene language—words I have never heard before," Cohn told the court in describing a 1939 meeting at Berlin secret police headquarters between Eichmann and leaders of the Jewish community.

Another former German Jewish leader, Aaron Walter Lindenstrauss, testified that Eichmann summoned heads of the Jewish community in Vienna, lined them up in front of him and ordered them "in very coarse language" to speed up emigration of Jews.

Eichmann, seated in his bullet proof glass box, smiled faintly and scribbled notes as he listened to the testimony.

Earlier, the court heard extracts from an affidavit by Eichmann's former aide, Dieter Wisliceny, written in a Nuernberg war crimes jail in 1946, charging him with being a "coward."

Wisliceny, who was hanged as a war criminal in 1947, said Eichmann was fanatical in his desire to kill Jews but was too timid to take any action without express orders from his superior officers.

Washington Hails Victory By De Gaulle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official Washington was obviously cheered Tuesday night by news from Paris and Algiers that the Algerian revolt had collapsed.

Authorities privately expressed hope that French President Charles de Gaulle would now be able to move forward again in his quest for a settlement of the Algerian crisis.

Neither the White House nor the State Department had any formal comment, although Secretary of State Dean Rusk said "it is always a great help to the free world to see France strong and unified."

Rusk spoke to newsmen before taking off for the April 27-29 Central Treaty Organization meeting at Ankara, Turkey. The organization is an alliance of Britain, Turkey, Iran and Pakistan.

The attitude of the American government toward the French situation had already been made emphatically clear by President Kennedy who offered De Gaulle any assistance he might want in putting down the revolt.

To some authorities here it seemed certain De Gaulle's success in smashing the uprising would strengthen his position in seeking a negotiated settlement for the future of Algeria. American officials believe such a settlement would enable France to play a much more effective role in building up the defenses of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe. The bulk of French military power has been committed to the defense of French interests in Algeria for the last 6½ years.

Price-Fix Meetings Encouraged By GE Top Brass, Senate Investigators Told

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate subcommittee heard testimony Tuesday that top brass in the General Electric Co. directed and encouraged illegal meetings with competitors to fix prices.

Three witnesses, all since fired by General Electric after a federal judge sentenced them for price fixing, told the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee that they had met with competitors on orders from superiors.

Their testimony identified Robert Paxton, a former GE president; Arthur F. Vinson, a vice president; and the late Henry V. Erben, a former executive vice president, as GE officials who ordered the meetings.

Much of the testimony, however, was based on indirect knowledge. In some cases, the witnesses testified they had been informed by others that these officials ordered the illegal meetings.

The most direct testimony came late in the day from George E. Burens, a former $127,000-a-year GE executive who was fined and sentenced to 30 days in jail after pleading guilty to government charges of price fixing.

Burens told the subcommittee that Erben and Paxton gave the instructions to meet with competitors. Burens, who was manager of GE's switchgear and control division, also testified that Erben had told him about a conversation he had had in 1952 with Ralph J. Cordiner, now board chairman of GE.

He quoted Erben as saying he told Cordiner that if the board chairman would not ask Erben to stop meeting with competitors, Cordiner would never hear about these meetings. Burens did not say what Cordiner's reply was.

As the subcommittee continued its hearings on price-fixing, President Kennedy aimed a blow at companies that attempt to rig prices when selling goods to the government.

Kennedy's action came in an executive order directing all agencies to report to the Justice Department all identical bids they receive on government contracts worth more than $10,000.

Prompt reporting, said Kennedy, "will discourage future submissions of such bids, aid in the enforcement of the antitrust laws and the maintenance of a competitive economy, and serve to reduce the cost to the government."

De Gaulle's War Order Hastens End

Angry Civilians In Algiers Clash With Gendarmes

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The generals' revolt that pushed France to the brink of civil war collapsed Wednesday in the surrender of its leaders and the despair of diehard civilian settlers.

The end came with dramatic suddenness with the surrender of Gen. Maurice Challe while about 50,000 people milled on the giant Forum Square of Algiers, seething with rage and battling gendarmes.

Challe made a last despondent appearance on the balcony of the government building with Gen. Raoul Salan at his side. Then the two disappeared inside.

Challe, the brains of the insurrection, had already sent word to President Charles de Gaulle in Paris that he was at the disposition of the government.

The end of the revolt was hastened by President Charles de Gaulle's orders to wipe out the rebels with all means necessary—including warfare—to restore order.

The fate of Challe's fellow rebels remained in doubt but those chiefly responsible may be executed as traitors.

Salan Suicide Report False

The recaptured Algiers radio first had reported that Salan had committed suicide but the general then appeared with Challe.

The generals were deprived of even a farewell speech to the massed thousands on the square.

The microphones on the balcony were dead and their words were lost in the tumult, shooting and confusion of the midnight end to their desperate adventure.

In the final chaotic moments of the generals' revolt three gendarmes fell in the streets, wounded by fire from windows of surrounding apartments. The angry gendarmes returned the fire.

The paratroops who defiantly captured the government buildings Saturday were nowhere to be seen. They had pulled out of the center of Algiers earlier, leaving the way clear for gendarmes to move in.

The European population of Algiers—almost to a man behind the insurrection — was angry and stupified. Most of them had arms, and fights with the gendarmes were reported throughout the city.

The rebellion broke out without warning early last Saturday to enforce the European population's bitter determination to keep French rule firmly over Algeria in opposition to De Gaulle's course toward dealing with the Nationalists.

Radio Algiers Recaptured

De Gaulle already has opened the legal proceedings that could result in death sentences for all the insurgent leaders.

The French and Algiers radios, again linked for the first time since Saturday, carried a series of night-time announcements to spread the news.

In the announcement from De Gaulle's Elysee Palace there was no mention of the other top generals involved—Andre Zeller and Edmond Jouhaud.

It was just after midnight in Paris when the collapse of the rebellion became apparent.

Radio Algiers first reported the suicide of Salan and the surrender of Challe.

The voice of the insurgents, radio Algiers, was recaptured Tuesday night by French marines and immediately rejoined the French national network.

It reported Gaullist forces were taking over the French North African capital, the last major hold-

Tshombe Threatens To Quit Congo Talks

COQUILHATVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe threatened Tuesday to quit the Congolese leaders' conference here unless central government President Joseph Kasavubu agreed to cease all cooperation with the United Nations.

The Katanga leader stormed out of the opening session Monday after charging that Kasavubu had bowed to U.N. pressure and was "incapable of running the debate at the conference." His attack on Kasavubu left the conference near collapse.

"I will come back," Tshombe said Tuesday, "when you are ready to reply to my conditions." There was no indication, that he planned to leave immediately for Katanga.

U. S. Officials Consider New Strategy For Toppling Castro Regime In Cuba

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has assigned the top agencies of his administration the job of figuring out a new strategy for destroying Castroism in Cuba.

He has taken on himself the task of winning from Republican leaders a moratorium on domestic political argument which could wreck the new attempt before it was launched.

As of now, high officials privately concede that neither Kennedy nor anyone else in Washington knows what the next move against pro-Communist Prime Minister Fidel Castro in Havana will be.

Many plans are reported under consideration, ranging from direct U.S. military action—now highly unlikely—to imposition of inter-American political sanctions, which U.S. officials very much desire.

But basic to the future, in Kennedy's view, is the need to prevent a Republican-Democratic dog fight over the recent failure from wrecking future operations.

To that end Kennedy has conferred with former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 GOP presidential candidate; Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York; and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Two sets of studies now are under way. One is concerned with a resurvey of U.S.-Cuban relations looking toward the destruction of Castro's rule. Informants said that the President clearly is committed to bring Castro down in some manner, considering him a threat to the stability of the Western Hemisphere, just as a Soviet base in Cuba would be to the security of the United States.

The other study goes more directly ino the operation of the Central Intelligence Agency, which reportedly helped train and equip the 1,200-man Cuban rebel assault force which launched the abortive landing operation against Castro eight days ago. That study is under the direction of retired Army Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Several possible lines of action are under consideration—but none of them near firm decision:

1. Naval Blockade—In the President's view this would be an act of war and probably not a very effective one since a blockade is designed to strangle a nation to death slowly. Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk so far have been cold to this procedure.

2. Economic Embargo—A partial embargo is already in effect. To impose a total embargo would deny the Cuban people foodstuffs and medicines which they now can still buy from the United States and deny American cigar makers their tobacco from Cuba. The greatest single diplomatic disadvantage of a total embargo is that it would subject the United States to propaganda charges of starving he Cuban people.

3. Direct Military Intervention—U.S. officials are extremely reluctant to revive intervention as an instrument of American policy, however great the provocation. They fear revival of anti-Yankeeism on a huge scale throughout Latin America.

4. A new anti-Castro operation by Cuban refugees—If it could be properly organized and supported on a large scale, that kind of action might still be the way out for the United States, some authorities think.

5. Inter-American Action — Under existing agreements the Organization at American states could impose economic and political sanctions on Castro by two-thirds vote. So far Castro's popularity in Latin America has been great enough to block such a vote. Now Washington authorities say one of the unexpected results of last week's failure is growth of anti-Castro sentiment among Latin-American countries.

Violent Spring Storm Claims Lives Of Four

By United Press International

Tornadoes, vicious winds and torrential rains battered the nation Tuesday from Arkansas to the Alleghenies.

The violent spring storm claimed at least four lives, injured eight persons and wreaked widescale property damage.

Tornadoes hopscotched across sections of Arkansas, Missouri, Indiana and Ohio and twister alerts extended into sections of Kentucky and Pennsylvania, including the Pittsburgh metropolitan area.

Record - breaking downpours triggered floodwaters from Missouri to western New York.

Two persons were killed on farms in Clinton County, Ohio, when a tornado or high winds blew barns down on them. One 12-year-old boy was crushed to death under a steer in a barn near Martinsville, Ohio.

Two others were killed in an auto collision on a rain - swept highway near Carlyle, Ill.

The town of Eaton, Ohio, about 35 miles west of Dayton, was hit hard. Eaton's mayor declared an emergency and called for help from the National Guard.

State highway police radioed that about one-third of the buildings in Eaton were flattened. The city hall was among the buildings hit.

Winds up to 81 miles an hour whipped the Cincinnati area. They toppled the steeple from the Mount Auburn Methodist Church in a Cincinnati suburb, smashed department store windows in downtown Cincinnati and uprooted trees. Two women were injured by flying debris.

Heavy Rains Swell Susquehanna River

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Heavy local rains in New York and Northern Pennsylvania brought sharp rises in the Susquehanna River and its tributaries Tuesday, with more high water expected.

The flood forecasting service in Harrisburg said the Susquehanna would rise to 23 feet Wednesday morning in Wilkes-Barre, and would crest around 24 to 25 feet. Flood stage there is 22 feet, but the city itself is protected by dikes and the service said no serious flood consequences are expected.

The service issued a special caution to small boat owners. This was occasioned by the sharp rise of 10 to 12 feet above recent levels on the North Branch and six to seven feet above recent stages on the Susquehanna, at Sunbury and downstream.

De Gaulle's War

out remaining in the hands of insurgents.

Oran and Constantine earlier had been reported back in Gaullist hands.

One salient fact stood out in a welter of confusion in Algiers: The insurrection that vowed to keep Algeria under French rule against De Gaulle's course for dealing with Natonalists was dying in high drama.

The generals' coup came without warning early last Saturday morning, and France had gone on the defense in anticipation of an airborne invasion of Paris from Algeria.

De Gaulle had taken the sternest measures with orders to wipe out the insurgents by war if necessary. The tide seemed to turn quickly after that.

Algiers radio claimed that "republican law and order" was being re-established in the capital of the North African territory.

The report followed a broadcast saying that street fighting had raged briefly in the streets of the capital Tuesday night.

The fighting was reported after Gaulle, with wide support of his military arms, ordered French soldiers in Algeria to smash the Algiers generals' revolt with open warfare if necessary.

The street fighting apparently broke out about the time the insurgent leadership called for a mass rally.

Cuban Radio Claims 1,000 Rebels Held

MIAMI (UPI)—Cuban radio stations claimed Tuesday that "approximately 1,000" men of the invasion force have been captured and demanded that the others surrender.

The force was estimated to have numbered about 1,200 when the landings were made last Monday.

The broadcasts also announced the surrender of Rebel Capt. Rafael Grenier Martinez, believed to be the first officer claimed captured, and a second priest, Father Jose Lugo.

Earlier broadcasts said the captured invaders would either be shot by firing squads or go to prison.

"There is no third position," the Havana station CMQ said on a nation-wide broadcast. "There is either prison or the wall."

Manuel Prado, president of Peru, Tuesday joined other heads of Latin American countries in an appeal that the regime of Premier Fidel Castro "suspend the firing squad executions."

But the tone of Cuban broadcasts gave little hope that would happen. It referred to a priest who appeared among the prisoners on television Monday night and early Tuesday as having landed "with a rosary in one hand and a machine gun in the other."

The Russians, meanwhile, poured thousands of tons of goods into Cuba to meet growing shortages.

Woman Found Badly Beaten

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 45-year old woman, victim of an assault which apparently occurred more than two days ago, was found badly beaten Tuesday in critical condition tied up in her bed.

Police identified the victim as Mrs. Francis M. Lockwood, a divorcee. Police said her chances of surviving appeared slim.

She was still unconscious after being taken to Washington Hospital Center. Police said her jaw was broken, that she had been beaten about the head and both eyes were blackened.

Deputy Chief Edgar E. Scott said Mrs. Lockwood was found by a telephone operator after the woman's mother had telephoned to inquire her whereabouts.

The room was in great disorder and ransacked. Scott said Mrs. Lockwood, a retired government worker, lived alone in the apartment.

Gov. Tawes Will Sign Assateague Bridge Bills

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes Tuesday turned down a plea that he veto two bills which will permit construction of a bridge linking Assateague Island with the Worcester County mainland.

Tawes said he would sign the measures, providing for state-county participation in building the $1.5 million structure, at his next bill-signing session May 3.

"I believe if we're going to discharge our responsibilities, we've got to provide access to Assateague Island—our last great undeveloped ocean beach," Tawes said at a hearing on the measures.

He said the span will be needed for use the development of a state park planned on the island as well as by persons who have bought lots on the 23 - mile strip below Ocean City which has seen only limited development since a real estate promotion started there in 1951.

W. E. Green of Snow Hill, who has sought since 1953 to have a public authority created to supervise development of the island, opposed the bridge bills.

He told the governor building a bridge to the island without providing other public facilities for an orderly development "is like treating a symptom without treating the disease."

He urged that Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan investigate conditions on the island and questioned the legality of the state building the span.

Green said there are only 30 homes on the island and there is no urgency for construction of the bridge.

He used such terms as "swindle," "malgovernment" and "political machinations" in referring to the sland and developments which ultimately led to the bills before Tawes.

Some 60 persons attended the hearing in the governor's reception room, and Green was the only opponent to the bills.

The state plans to pay two-thirds of the cost and the county one-third, with all the funds to be redemmed through tolls which will be placed on the bridge after May 1, 1965.

House GOP Opposes Job Aid Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Republican leaders voted Tuesday to oppose a Senate-House conference agreement on a $394 million depressed areas bill.

The measure, one of President Kennedy's top priority bills, comes up in the House Wednesday. It has been approved by the Senate.

The House GOP Policy Committee said it would fight the method of financing put into the bill by the Senate after a different version had been voted by the House.

House conferees, under pressure from the administration, accepted the Senate proposal, which opponents call "back door spending." It permits withdrawals from the Treasury without the annual congressional appropriations that the House bill would have required.

He used such terms as "swindle," "malgovernment" and "political machinations" in referring to the island and developments which ultimately led to the bills before Tawes.

Some 60 persons attended the hearing in the governor's reception room, and Green was the only opponent to the bills.

The state plans to pay two-thirds of the cost and the county one-third, with all the funds to be redemmed through tolls which will be placed on the bridge after May 1, 1965.

House GOP Opposes Job Aid Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Republican leaders voted Tuesday to oppose a Senate-House conference agreement on a $394 million depressed areas bill.

The measure, one of President Kennedy's top priority bills, comes up in the House Wednesday. It has been approved by the Senate.

The House GOP Policy Committee said it would fight the method of financing put into the bill by the Senate after a different version had been voted by the House.

House conferees, under pressure from the administration, accepted the Senate proposal, which opponents call "back door spending." It permits withdrawals from the Treasury without the annual congressional appropriations that the House bill would have required.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a strict man who must be Lord and Master of all he surveys. Although he's only in his late twenties he acts a great deal like my grandfather did when he was 70.

The problem that is causing me great anxiety involves our children who are 4 and 6 years of age.

My husband insists that he and I eat all our meals in the dining room while the children eat in the kitchen alone. He claims the man of the house is entitled to enjoy his meals without having to listen to and look at jabbering and slobbering children. According to him he has a weak stomach and the children give him indigestion. What can I do?—MRS. DON'T KNOW

DEAR MRS.: The trouble is not in his stomach, it's a few feet higher—in his head. A father who cannot tolerate the sight and sound of his children during mealtime is ill.

Youngsters raised in such an atmosphere grow up to hate and fear their father. They see friends enjoying meals with THEIR parents and it gives them the feeling that something must be wrong with them.

If your husband refuses to eat with his children join them in the kitchen and give him so much peace and quiet that he'll take himself to a psychiatrist and get the help he so desperately needs.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A group of university students had a heated discussion last night and an interesting question came up. We'd like your opinion.

The girl is engaged to an upper-middle-class law student. She's just plain middle-class—a notch below him in the social structure. He wants to get married in the spring. She is stalling with this pitch: "Not until you can take me on a first-class honeymoon to Nassau." He says he can't afford it. She says "Your father can—don't be so proud. You know he'd be happy to underwrite the trip."

What do you say?—COFFEE HOUSE GROUP

DEAR GROUP: The middle-class girl has fourth-class values. If the fellow is lucky she'll stall him off until he finds a first-class girl who'll settle for no honeymoon if that's what he can afford.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a woman 51 years of age, in excellent health and I have never married. I'm no man-hater, in fact I enjoy the company of men more than women. I passed up marriage because as the oldest of five children I believed it was my responsibility to look after our semi-invalid mother.

Mother passed away two years ago. I've been going with a professional man who wants to marry me. He is 59, a widower and a fine person, well respected and active in community affairs.

My brother and sisters are appalled at the thought of a woman my age being "a bride." My oldest brother says the Bible states clearly that the sole purpose of marriage is to have a family, and that any other reason is sinful.

Is he right? What do you advise?—KATHLEEN

DEAR KATHLEEN: What Bible is he reading? I've never heard of such biblical advice. It may be a little late for you to "go forth and multiply," but marriage that offers companionship in the evening of your years makes a great deal of sense.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

bringing up baby. hints

COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Another day, another year and National Baby Week is here: April 29 to May 6. What better time to check your grocer and see all the wonderful services he provides for your convenience.

Every week is Baby Week at Gerber. And because babies are the most important people, Gerber prepares over 100 quality baby foods to meet your baby's nutritional needs.

One good example of exceptional quality: Gerber Baby Cereals . . . made to please your baby's palate and nourish him as well. Flavors are pleasantly mild . . . the texture smooth as can be when mixed with formula or milk. (And they stir to creamy perfection in seconds.) As for nourishment, all 5 are enriched with iron, important B-vitamins and calcium. And all 5 are rich in the calories baby needs for energy. Rice Cereal, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and High Protein Cereal.

The meaning of TLC. Words by the score have been written on the subject of Tender Loving Care. The main theme seems to be the love you shower on your little one. But I like to think that TLC is more than just plain mother-love. It's the tenderness with which you handle baby, the prompt way you tend to his wants. It's a tone of voice, a happy smile, a lullabye sweet and low. The result? A complete baby . . . a happy heart.

Tasty "pots" for older tots. Now Gerber Junior Cookies come in adorable animal shapes. A joy to eat, a fun way to teach baby animal names. Nutritionally, they've twice as much protein as most other cookies, plus B-vitamins in the icing. Take any time close to snack time, and serve them with a luscious Gerber juice: Orange, Apple, Orange-Apple, Orange-Pineapple, Pineapple-Grapefruit or the new Apple-Cherry. Do You Suffer From Sick, Throbbing Migraine Headaches?

New Medical Discovery Never Before Available
Now Released To Public. So Safe No Prescription Needed.

Today, science has announced a doctor's new formula which has been especially developed to relieve both the throbbing pain and sickish feeling of migraine-type headaches. Tests conducted by a practicing New York physician showed that in patient after patient—pain-relief and comfort were obtained in minutes. And all without the use of narcotics, codeine or ergot remedies which may upset the stomach and so further aggravate the condition.

This remarkable new formula is called Duplexin®. It is the first headache discovery in the history of medicine with this exclusive formula, (a unique 2-layer pink and white tablet). It relieves both headache pain and a sick, upset stomach with this exclusive formula.

Here are the medical facts why Duplexin is safer, faster, more effective—why it's unlike the usual headache remedies. Only Duplexin unites powerful doctor-approved pain relievers with this special stomach-soothing antacid. In seconds, Duplexin does what no aspirin or buffered aspirin can ever do. It contains exclusive, hospital-tested medications not found in any alkalizer or seltzer. Duplexin's white layer concentrates on relieving pain faster. Throbbing pain relieved in minutes. Its pink layer relieves that sickish feeling and protects your stomach as it keeps on speeding relief.

Duplexin also calms nervous stress (which so often causes migraine) and helps relieve depression. Taken at the first sign of an attack, Duplexin actually helps prevent those migraine pains. Ask for Duplexin Tablets at any drugstore. Now available without prescription.

Do You Suffer From Sick, Throbbing Migraine Headaches?

New Medical Discovery Never Before Available
Now Released To Public. So Safe No Prescription Needed.

Today, science has announced a doctor's new formula which has been especially developed to relieve both the throbbing pain and sickish feeling of migraine-type headaches. Tests conducted by a practicing New York physician showed that in patient after patient—pain-relief and comfort were obtained in minutes. And all without the use of narcotics, codeine or ergot remedies which may upset the stomach and so further aggravate the condition.

This remarkable new formula is called Duplexin®. It is the first headache discovery in the history of medicine with this exclusive formula, (a unique 2-layer pink and white tablet). It relieves both headache pain and a sick, upset stomach with this exclusive formula.

Here are the medical facts why Duplexin is safer, faster, more effective—why it's unlike the usual headache remedies. Only Duplexin unites powerful doctor-approved pain relievers with this special stomach-soothing antacid. In seconds, Duplexin does what no aspirin or buffered aspirin can ever do. It contains exclusive, hospital-tested medications not found in any alkalizer or seltzer. Duplexin's white layer concentrates on relieving pain faster. Throbbing pain relieved in minutes. Its pink layer relieves that sickish feeling and protects your stomach as it keeps on speeding relief.

Duplexin also calms nervous stress (which so often causes migraine) and helps relieve depression. Taken at the first sign of an attack, Duplexin actually helps prevent those migraine pains. Ask for Duplexin Tablets at any drug-store. Now available without prescription.

Four Annapolis Youths Charged In Girl Attack

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Four Annapolis youths were held for action of the Prince Georges County grand jury Tuesday in the attack on a 13-year-old girl in a gravel pit near the Anne Arundel County line.

The attack occurred April 16 after the youths met the girl outside the Colonial Bowling Alley in Annapolis, county police said.

Two suspects, Elvin L. Cox, 20, and Thomas N. Singleton, 18, charged with rape, were remanded to the county jail in Upper Marlboro without bond after a preliminary hearing in Hyattsville Police Court.

Judge George J. O'Hare also made the same disposition for James N. Natale, 20, charged with rape. A few hours later, a bond of $20,000 was set for Natale during a habeus corpus hearing in Prince Georges Circuit Court.

The fourth suspect, John E. Cullen III, 20, charged with attempted rape, was ordered held for the grand jury. He was released on $3,000 bond set by O'Hare.

State's Atty. William A. Kahler opposed bond for Natale, saying the offense was a capital crime for which a suspect should not be permitted back on the streets before trial.

Circuit Judge Ernest A. Loveless Jr. agreed the crime was a "very serious nature" and said the bond was "very substantial."

Kahler said the case will be presented to the grand jury convening May 15.

New Eighth District Opposition Mounts

By The Associated Press

Maryland's newly - create d8th Congressional District came under attack from two sources Tuesday.

In Baltimore, the League of Women Voters moved to support efforts which would put the issue on a referendum in the 1962 general election. In Howard County, Republicans started a drive to collect 2,000 names on a petition forcing the issue to a vote.

To force a referendum, 10,000 signatures are needed.

The new district, resulting from population increases in the state in the past 10 years, was created by the 1961 Maryland Legislature. Opponents argue that it's boundaries are inequitable.

Legislators carved the 8th out of Howard and Prince George's counties. Opponents claim the boundaries are political and do not provide for population shifts. Residents of the area consistently vote Democratic.

Maryland News In Brief

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — John W. Hensley, a 35-year-old construct. worker, was killed instantly Tuesday when a crane boom fell and crushed him.

Hensley, from Herald Harbor, was directing an operation under the crane at the time of the accident, according to witnesses at the scene.

Witnesses said a crane cable slipped causing the mishap.

Hensley, the father of five children, was employed by the G. A. Crandall Construction Co. on a building project at Eastport, near here, at the time of the accident.

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Louis Frank Brown Sr., 56, transportation superintendent of the Baltimore Sunpapers since 1953 and an employe of the newspapers since 1927, died Tuesday of a heart attack at his home here.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Edward L. Flanigan, 77, head of the paving firm of P. Flanigan and Co., died Tuesday at Bon Secours Hospital where he had been a patient since last week.

He was a director of St. Elizabeth's Orphanage, a charter member of the Maryland Highway Construction Association, and the oldest living member of the Hibernian Society of Baltimore.

SALISBURY (AP) — Wicomico County commissioners Tuesday set a tax rate of $1.92 per $100 of assessable base for the next fiscal year, a reduction of 4 cents under the current levy.

The county's budget for the period has been set at a record $3,661,000. Wade H. Insley Jr., president of the commissioners, said the reduction was made possible by an increase in the assessable base of almost $14 million, an expected surplus of $150,000 and an estimated $140,000 likely in receipts from the new cigarette tax boost approved by the 1961 General Assembly.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Paul F. Helfrick, 22, who escaped from the Springfield State Hospital Monday night, returned voluntarily to the institution Tuesday, along with two companions who fled with him.

Helfrick had been confined at the institution since earlier in the month, after being found innocent by reason of insanity in a case in which he was charged with placig his daughter in a refrigerator.

A fourth man who escaped from the institution at the same time still was being sought. He was identified as Frank Swiston, 22, of Baltimore.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Bituminous Construction Co. of Baltimore was the apparent low bidder Tuesday for a project to resurface two tubes of the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel.

The company's bid of $18,720 was low of five received. The work is to be done on two consecutive weekends next month.

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — Donald L. Lewis, operator of a sporting goods and confectionery store, has been elected mayor of this Frederick County town. He defeated Calvin G. Wilhide, a rural mail carrier, 308-264, in balloting Monday.

Pay Windfall Stands As JFK Signs Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Tuesday signed a bill giving a Baltimore man the benefit of errors which added $4,447.98 to his salary over a 3½ year period.

Earl H. Pendell was overpaid that amount, as a result of what was called an administrative error, as a federal court reporter at Baltimore between Sept. 7, 1955 and March 7, 1959.

The error was discovered and part of the overpayment was deducted from his salary before illness forced his retirement.

The bill, introduced by Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., cancels Pendell's debt and directs the Secretary of the Treasury to pay him any money withheld as a result of the overpayments.

Forests originally covered about one-third of all the world's land areas.

If Conservatism Is Dead, Why Won't It Lie Down

Today's text, on conservative ideas, has nothing whatsoever to do with politics. We're going to talk about . . . taste in clothing, colors, cosmetics, and coiffures. Everything that contributes to a woman's total appearance. We're going to find out why this right-wing element of fashion holds its high rating tthrough all the exciting changes brought about by avant-garde design.

Why does conservatism remain so constant? Because it gives a woman security, that so-important feeling of self-confidence. She knows she can depend on her "basics." She knows she can never go wrong when she offers an "understatement" in answer to that confusing question, "what to wear?"

Conservatism is usually good taste, tested and approved, sometimes over many, many years. (Consider how couturiers repeat certain style phase over and over, again.) Conservatism is wise economy. (Consider the gown that can go everywhere until it WEARS out, not until it has GONE out.)

Some of the finest examples of practical, yet fashionable, conservatism can be found in the women whose positions place them in the public eye. I don't refer here to the average Hollywood type (who can be found in every theatrical center, although, the entertainment field can boast of many women with classic taste.

I point, rather, to the well-known figures in business and society; to the women who hold public office, or who are married to men of influence. It's interesting to note that the husbands of such women are not always men of "affluence."

Always seen, often photographed, these women dare not wear outfits stamped "outlandish", or styles that might date them or become too memorable to be worn on other occasions. Even the richest of the rich girls can't afford wardrobes that revolve on single appearances. The rich girls can't afford wardrobes that revolve on single appearances.

That's why fashion writers focus such admiring attention on the popular style setters who stay strides ahead without sacrificing the basic lines they've found so becoming. There is, for instance, America's newest First Lady who, like so many of her predecessors, sensibly updated and replenishes her wardrobe with duplicates of her favorite designs in a variety of colors and fabrics to suit each new season.

What happens, then, to the passing fads and the feminine fancies? Does a conservative dresser absolutely eschew everything that's new and daringly different?

Not at all!

She has, in fact, more fun than most women in taking a flyer with startling accessories or unusual modes. Since her wardrobe is built on a conservative base with simplicity as her hallmark, it's bound to have a long life—and she's bound to have some extra money in her clothes budget to spend on spicing her basics with novel tastes.

High-fashion extremes and extras can never be called wasteful extravagance, counted by the well-planned "touch." Only full-time faddists can be termed superfluous spendthrifts; summed up as: "A touch too much!"

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Peter Ustinov stopped by to say au revoir before he and Suzanne (Mrs. U) took off for New York and Switzerland. He told me that he is going to be in a play next fall, "Photo Finish," for Joe Levine. "Isn't he something," said Peter. "I know you like him—you write about him often."

"I adore him," I told Peter, "his enthusiasm is so exhilarating and refreshing."

Poor Joe tore the cartilage in his knee when he tripped in his home in Boston, and you can imagine what this is going to do that active gentleman who commutes to Europe and back just as you and I would go downtown to shop.

Either Dick Powell wants to have peace or June Allyson wants to continue her TV career. I say this because June will be one of Dick's guests on his first hour-long television series "Who Killed Julie Green" for NBC.

Dick has an impressive cast—Carolyn Jones, Ralph Bellamy, Lloyd Bridges, Ronald Regan, Jack Carson, Edgar Bergen (without Charlie McCarthy) and Nick Adams. When they first being filming May 15th Aaron Spelling will be in charge and first assistant to Dick who is the star, naturally, of this new series.

Marilyn Monroe sounded wonderful on the telephone. I told her she must be completely well, and she said she is feeling just great. She hopes to see the Clark Gable baby while she's here.

I asked her if Joe Di Maggio will come to Hollywood to join her. I have always liked Joe, and Marilyn knows it. She said, "We didn't make any plans, and I don't expect him here." But, between you and me, I'll be surprised if Joe doesn't join Marilyn. He's always been fond of her, and no matter what she's done, he's always overlooked it. Marilyn never had any plans to go to Japan.

"I haven't discussed any new pictures up to now," she said. "The first thing I will do is my TV show 'Rain'."

One of the nicest gestures Debbie Reynolds ever made in her whole life, or any other actress for that matter, happened Sunday night at dinner at the home of Lita Baron and Rory Calhoun.

Without saying a word to her host or hostess, Debbie sent home for the most beautiful hand embroidered cape with a picture of Guadalupe in the center, the last one worn by the world famous bull-fighter Manolete before he was killed. Debbie had it on a frame and it fitted so perfectly over the fireplace you would have sworn that it was made for the room.

I asked Debbie where she got it and she said she had admired it so in Miguel Aleman Jr.'s home that he had sent it to her. Manolete had met his death in Mexico.

Harry Karl and Debbie are working on their new house, she told me.

I sat next to Delmer Daves at dinner and I couldn't believe he has directed and written so many important pictures. Practically every big star including Clark Gable, Gary Cooper, Humphrey Bogart, Bette Davis, Susan Hayward, have worked for him.

He said Lloyd Nolan was in his class at Stanford in 1926. "I had intended to be a lawyer," Delmer told me, "but Lloyd persuaded me to come to Hollywood and write—he was going to be an actor. And can you believe it, in all those years — over 30 — we have never worked together until I made 'Susan Slade' in 1961, and I directed him."

Frances and Sam Goldwyn deliberated their 36th wedding anniversary on Saturday night with a delightful dinner. It was a very happy and gay party. Sam looks wonderful, and thoroughly enjoyed himself. Frances wore a becoming deep pink gown with her beautiful pearls. Sam Jr. and his pretty blonde wife Jennifer assisted in receiving.

Sharman Douglas told me that she is leaving in a few days for Africa. She'll stop in London and visit some of her old friends. At one time she was very close to Princess Margaret, and I asked her if she expected to see Margaret. Sharman said no plans were made, but that she hoped to see her and Anthony Armstrong-Jones whom she's met and likes very much.

Dave Selznick gave a toast to Sam and Frances. Edie and Ernie Kovacs told me of all the new things they've done to that fantastic house of theirs. Ernie is one of Sam's croquet partners.

Gloria Stewart talked about a safari she is planning. Among the other guests were Jimmy Stewart, Audrey and Billy Wilder, and Jimmy McHugh.

Magistrates Given Pay Increase

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday unanimously voted a $200 annual salary increase for the 12 magistrates in the various communities.

A motion by Commissioner John T. Mason for the increase was adopted by the board following a brief discussion as to its effect on the magistrate for Juvenile Court. It was stated that the Juvenile Court magistrate's salary schedule is being handled by another procedure.

The increase will not take effect until the magistrates qualify early next month.

There are 12 magistrates in the county with two each in Cumberland and Frostburg and one each in Midland, Barton, Lonaconing, Westernport, Cresaptown, Mt. Savage, Oldtown and Flintstone.

The commissioners had intended to give the $200 increase last year when all county employes were given a similar pay raise, but the law does not allow the salaries of magistrates to be raised during their term of office. They had qualified and taken office a year prior to the county's general $200 pay raise.

The Lincoln penny was coined in 1909.

Schedule Set For Clean-Up Week In City

All available Street Department trucks and men will be pressed into service next week to collect trash and debris in the annual "Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Week" observance, Street Commissioner John J. Long announced.

Men and trucks will leave the Street Department warehouse at 7 a. m. and follow this schedule:

Monday, May 1 — South of Williams Street including the area from Winifred Road to River Avenue.

Tuesday, May 2 — North of Williams Street including the area to Piedmont Avenue and the city limits at Frederick and Bedford streets.

Wednesday, May 3 — The entire West Side beginning at North Mechanic Street.

Street Superintendent Ray Valentine said trash and debris should be at the curb by 7 a. m.

However, he voiced this warning. No loose trash, debris, shrubbery, hedges or trees will be collected.

Trash should be in old cartons or cans, papers should be tied together and tree limbs, shrubbery and the like tied into bunches for easy collection.

Do not place good garbage cans at the curb because street crews will collect all items at the curb, Valentine further warned.

In years past, some good garbage cans have been tossed into the pickup trucks with the result that valuable time was lost later in sorting them out and returning them to the owners.

Valentine said all trucks including those of the flood maintenance and sewer departments would be pressed into service for the three-day drive. All men will work on the cleanup with the exception of the street sweeper crews.

Long said the overall cleanup will be supervised by Valentine. However, he said, various sections of town are the responsibility of various foremen in the department.

Robert Clark has West Side and North End; William Simpson is in charge of East Side; Raymond Frantz, South End; Harry Rodenhauser, utilities; and James Shaw, the Sewer Department.

Compiaints, he said, should be directed to the Street Department warehouse where they are listed on a work sheet for the foremen to follow up.

Long urged all citizens to take part in the clean-up and said his department was happy to take time out from its important street work at this busy season of the year to help promote a cleaner, safer and more prosperous-looking city.

"For yourself your family and your city join in this clean-up campaign," he urged.

Buchanan On Sanitary Unit

Acting on the recommendation of the LaVale Civic Improvement Association the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday named Lloyd Buchanan as a member of the LaVale Sanitary Commission.

Harry Kauffman, chairman of the LaVale Sanitary Commission, has stated he does not desire to be reappointed and when his term ends early next month Buchanan will assume membership on the commission.

Buchanan is currently on the LaVale Zoning Board but will resign that post when the new appointment becomes effective.

The letter of recommendation was signed by Mrs. Florence Whitworth of the Civic Improvement Association.

LaVale Church Holding Revival

A spring revival is in progress at LaVale Baptist Church, and will continue through Sunday evening April 30, each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Rev. C. T. Johnson, pastor of First Baptist Church, Cumberland, will be the speaker. Sunday morning, April 30 there is an attendance goal of 200 set for the Sunday School.

Mental Health Bell Ringer Campaign Schedule May 8

Plans for the May 8 Bell Ringers March, the final day of the 1961 Mental Health Campaign, in Allegany County were announced by Mrs. Helen Crabtree, Bell Ringers March chairman.

Between 6 p. m. and 10 p. m. on May 8 hundreds of volunteers will take part in the door-to-door solicitation for funds to support the fight against mental illness being carried out by the Maryland Association for Mental Health.

Mrs. Crabtree said an effort will be made to contact every family in this climax of the county campaign.

"Our Bell Ringers will wear tags displaying the Sign of the Ringing Bell, a symbol of a real bell that was cast in 1953 out of shackles formerly used to bind mental patients," she said.

No goal has been set for the drive, but the Mental Health Association should be assured of enough funds to carry on its work, she added.

Mrs. Walter Fraley has been appointed special gifts chairman, according to Walter J. Maxey, the campaign chairman.

Maxey also pointed out that in contributing to the Bell Ringers one should remember that every dollar given helps to support research in the treatment, prevention and cure of mental illness.

GOP Study Course Is Set Tonight

The second in a series of study courses, sponsored by the Young Republican Club of Allegany County, will be held today at 8 p.m.

Donald W. Mason, club president, said today's course will be conducted in the Chamber of Commerce office, sixth floor of the Liberty Trust Building.

William Sullivan, city, will instruct the course entitled "Action Course In Practical Politics". Co-instructor is Gerald Barb.

Mason pointed out that all Republicans, regardless of age, are invited to attend the sessions.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID'S unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for expectant mothers. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID today! INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢

Iran: Another Crucial Outpost

Secretary Rusk's journey to Ankara tomorrow may be merely a matter of helping some important allies save face. Having traveled to Bangkok to attend the SEATO conference in March, and planning to attend the NATO conference in Oslo in May, Rusk could hardly pass up the meeting of foreign ministers of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) this month without wounding the pride of the Middle East alliance and risking weakening its already flabby muscles.

On the other hand, Rusk could be carrying to his appointment in Ankara a message from President Kennedy indicating an American purpose to stiffen CENTO's back. This would take some doing.

Of CENTO's regional members, the strongest and surest is certainly Turkey, which is also the Eastern anchor of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and continues to furnish NATO its largest contingent of troops. Turkey has suffered a revolution and is now undergoing a painful process of renewing democratic institutions, but throughout all its foreign policy, singularly enough, has remained unchanged and its loyalty to its allies has never faltered.

After Turkey, Pakistan is our most powerful military ally in Asia, but the adjective is perhaps too strong. Pakistan's principal preoccupation, her long quarrel with India, has shown signs of lessening of late, as have Pakiston's economic troubles. But President Mohammed Ayub Khan has made only plodding progress in the direction of restoring democratic government.

The bridge state of Iran is the weakest member of CENTO. In his long interview with Walter Lippmann, Soviet Premier Khrushchev asserted that Iran had a very weak Communist party but that nevertheless corruption and the misery of the masses were surely producing a revolution. Khrushchev looked to inevitable attraction of Iran to the Communist orbit, even though he regarded the nation as "a poor country which is of no use to the Soviet Union."

If Iran goes Red, Pakistan will be isolated among Communist, otherwise hostile, or neutral states and CENTO almost certainly shattered. Indeed, in the Cold War Iran is almost as crucial an outpost as Laos or Cuba, and almost as gingerly defended.

The Income Tax

Now it is the National Committee for Economic Freedom that comes along with a proposal to abolish the Income Tax. This has to do with the proposed 23rd Amendment which has passed the Legislatures of Wyoming, Texas, Nevada and Louisiana. This proposed Amendment reads:

"Section 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Section 2. The constitutions or laws of any state, or the laws of the United States shall not be subject to the terms of any foreign or domestic agreement which would abrogate this amendment.

"Section 3. The activities of the United States Government which violate the intent and purposes of this amendment shall, within a period of three years from the date of the ratification of this amendment, be liquidated and the properties and facilities affected shall be sold.

"Section 4. Three years after the ratification of this amendment the sixteenth article of amendments to the Constitution of the United States shall stand repealed and thereafter Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates, and/or gifts."

Unfortunately Section 1 is utterly impossible if we are ever to defend this country. The manufacture of the atom and hydrogen bombs or the atomic submarine involves our government in considerable business enterprise. If we are forced to go into Cuba alone these costs will be greater.

Those who favor this Amendment say:

"The 'Proposed 23rd Amendment', would force the sale of the land and facilities of federal corporate activities back to the American people from whom they were taken, and thus cut the National Debt more than $65,000,000,000 . . ."

This program ignores the fact that we are engaged in war with Soviet Russia and that it is necessary to have allies, to have bases abroad, to purchase land in this country.

The Income Tax is not a wise tax in a capitalist country and it is collected with brutality in this country. Also, there is obvious waste in the cost of Government. Let us say, without figuring too closely, that the waste is as high as $10,000,000,000, which is twice the amount estimated by the Hoover Commission. We still have to find about $80,000,000,000, to meet essential expenditures, about $40,000,000,000 of which goes to war and defense.

Surely those who favor abolishing the Income Tax do not propose to make us defenseless and to turn us over to the kindly ministrations of Khrushchev or Castro. True, the Income Tax takes a great deal of our income, but these devils will take all of our capital.

That being so, their problem obviously is not so much to abolish the Income Tax as to propose another form of taxation that might be more equable and just. Certainly, one thing that can be done is to make it a felony to move funds abroad with the object of avoiding or evading, choose your own term, taxes. It should also be law that funds deposited abroad to evade or avoid taxes are not inheritable by Americans and may be totally confiscated if brought back in any form. This might help a bit and put some crooks where they belong.

But that still would not solve the problem. There would nevertheless have to be taxes for the manufacture of rockets and missiles and submarines, to say nothing of other purposes. If we are not to have the Income Tax, we might use a Transactions Tax, but the amount needed would be about the same.

As our economy stands today "duties and excises" will not bring in enough to take care of an $80,000,000,000 budget or even a $70,000,000,000 dollar budget. One of the arguments used by the anti-Income Tax advocates is that Section 8 of Article 1 of the Constitution is sufficient and all else should be repealed. But that article calls for the provision for "common defense and general welfare of the United States." The common defense is a very costly business and although I hate the Income Tax, I do not see how we can get the money we need except by this tax or a Transactions Tax.

U.S. Committed To Castro's Ultimate Downfall

By Stewart Alsop

EDITORS NOTE: Joseph Alsop is on a brief vacation. During his absence his brother Stewart will write the Alsop column

WASHINGTON

Sometimes it is useful to state the obvious. After the events of the last tragic week, and especially after what President Kennedy said in his speech to the editors, Fidel Castro cannot indefinitely be permitted to survive in triumph. The prestige and even the honor of the United States are now obviously and wholly committed to Castro's ultimate downfall.

There is hardly anybody in the higher reaches of the Kennedy Administration who does not agree that this commitment to Castro's destruction now in fact exists. And yet President Kennedy and his advisors certainly did not plan the commitment. On the contrary, the President's key decisions in regard to the Cuban operation were specifically designed to avoid such a commitment.

There were two key decisions made by the President after he decided to give the operation a green light. The plan for the operation which the President inherited from President Eisenhower involved the use of American armed force — for example, naval air power — if necessary to assure the success of the operation. President Kennedy's first key decision was to rule out the use of any American forces whatever, under any conditions whatever. His second key decision was to announce the first decision, just as the operation began.

The public announcement that American forces would under no circumstances be involved was reiterated twice by the President himself and four times with even more emphasis by Secretary of State Dean Rusk. The announcement obviously greatly reduced the likelihood of a general uprising in Cuba, which was the main purpose of the Cuban operation. It also quite unnecessarily tied the President's hands in advance.

After the operation began to go bad, at an all day meeting at the White House on Wednesday, certain of the President's military and civilian advisors favored active American intervention. They argued that the operation simply could not be allowed to fail, if only because the United States would in that event become in the eyes of the world the most papery of paper tigers. The President might well have favored this course himself, if he had not so publicly tied his own hands in advance. Why did he do so? This reporter has tried hard to find the answer to that question, and must confess a partial failure. The fact is that there has been something oddly uncharacteristic about the President's role in the Cuban affair. To be sure, since the operation failed, his actions have been wholly characteristic of the man —he has taken the whole responsibility for the failure on himself and he has passed the word down the line that there will be no recriminations and no scrapegoat hunt. The uncharacteristic phase came earlier.

Throughout his career — as for example in his decision to enter the key Wisconsin and West Virginia primaries last year — Kennedy has always looked before he leaped. He had looked very hard, carefully weighing every conceivable factor likely to affect the outcome. And then he has leaped very hard, using every conceivable means to assure success.

In the looking phase of the Cuban operation, Kennedy was certainly the victim of bad intelligence. But intelligence is and always has been two-thirds guesswork, and it is hard to believe that the President adequately weighed the consequences of failure. This is further borne out by the fact that the leaping phase of the operation was, by past Kennedy standards, so uncharacteristically tentative. The idea that Castro could be brought down without any risk at all of using American men or arms recalls the old rhyme of dubious origin:

Mother, may I go out to swim?
Yes, my darling daughter;
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb
And don't go near the water.

At least part of the explanation for the markedly un-Kennedy-like quality of the President's role in the first phase of the Cuban operation lies with United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, whose voice is listened to with respect in the Kennedy Administration. From his own point of view it was quite natural that Stevenson should strongly favor a categorical promise that American forces would not be used in Cuba. The peculiar holier-than-thou public stance which succeeding American delegations to the U.N. have always thought it necessary to assume was difficult to sustain in any case, in view of the obvious American complicity in the Cuban operation. Without the Kennedy promise, it would have been impossible to sustain.

Kennedy has spoken of "the lessons we have learned" from the tragic Cuban episode. One lesson, surely, is that what pleases the majority of the strangely assorted gaggle of more or less sovereign nations which now constitute the U.N. General Assembly does not necessarily serve the national interest of the United States. Another lesson is summed up in the old adage, "If you strike at a king, you must strike to kill."

Some day, one way or another, the American commitment to bring Castro down will have to be honored. The commitment can only be honored if the American government is willing, if necessary, to strike to kill, even if that risks the shedding of American blood.

SPACE FEAT—The Soviet feat of successfully returning an orbiting man to earth is the latest — and expected — blow to United States world prestige from Russia's determined efforts in the space and missile field.

Ever since the Soviets successfully placed the first man-made satellite in orbit more than three years ago, the U. S. has been attributing the feats to superior thrust of Russian rockets. This, roughly, remains the official position of this country.

However, some American scientists are beginning t. express unhappiness about this reiterated line. They contend privately that efforts of national personages to defend their political positions in this fashion are having the effect of lulling the American public to sleep, instead of stirring it up to the point where it will demand the kind of spending necessary to overtake Russia in space.

For instance, both Russia and the U. S. have sufficient rocket thrust to place a man in orbit around the earth. Yet, it was Russia that accomplished the feat. These scientists ask: Why didn't Uncle Sam step up his activities and try harder to beat the Russians?

The answer isn't hard to find. Individuals connected with the man-in-space program can point to many reasons why the American effort could not safely be speeded up. But it all seems to come down to budgeting limitations which had the effect of stretching out the research and development programs. Nearly all of them concede that if more money, more scientists, engineers, researchers, etc., could have been employed, the race might have had a different ending.

It is true, as Kennedy administration leaders contend, that the Russian accomplishment neither strengthens their military potential, nor weakens ours. But in the broadest sense, countless millions of the world's inhabitants are looking more and more to Russia as the leader in science and technology, and the military implications of this swing could some day be decisive.

Erythromelalgia-The Burning Skin Syndrome

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Several years ago a milddle aged man walked into the clinic at Northwestern university medical school and asked to see a physician because his feet were burning. He wasn't kidding, his extremities were fiery red and almost as hot as an iron.

"When they get like this," he said, "they burn, throb, and ache. At night I sleep with my feet outside the covers and the only time I'm comfortable is when I soak them in cold water."

Our patient had erythomelalgia —the burning skin syndrome. The arteries of the lower extremities dilate and the burning sensation stems from too much blood in the feet. The sensation is somewhat related to the burning that occurs when cold extremities are warmed by taking a hot bath or standing before a fire. It is noted occasionally in elderly persons and may be associated with high blood pressure, arthritis, or polycythemia (too many red corpuscles and too much hemoglobin).

Anything that increases dilatation of the arteries aggravates distress. This occurs when the legs hang down as when watching TV, during exercise, or when exposed to warmth. Cold contracts the vessels and relieves symptoms.

The best test for erythromelalgia is to cool the feet while the individual is lying quietly on a bed or an examining table. He is comfortable at this time. Then the extremities are warmed and when the skin temperature reaches a certain height, the burning sensation returns.

Aspirin is the best remedy but its action is not too well understood. Distress also is relieved by Plaquenil (chloroquine), a drug used in the treatment of malaria.

SORE NOSE

T. K. writes: What is the cause of an aching nose?

REPLY

Ulcers, pimples, and unusual dryness are the common organic causes. We usually suspect nervousness when the nose is out of joint because of frustration, anxiety, or anger.

TONSILECTOMY

Mrs. D. K. writes: When should a child's tonsils be taken out?

REPLY

Never, unless the organs harbor infection that encourages frequent sore throats and poor health.

APPETITE STIMULANT

U. C. S. writes: Is there a new hormone pill to increase appetite?

REPLY

Yes, several. Nilevar is an example of a hormone product that is stripped of the sex stimulating factor.

CALCULATED RISK

G. R. writes: A friend is going to be operated on and the surgeon told him he may need a transfusion or two afterward. Another friend says transfusions are dangerous because the patient may get hepatitis. Is this one man's opinion?

REPLY

No. The patient will not be given a transfusion unless it is needed. If it is necessary, the small risk of developing serum what.
hepatitis is preferable to you know what.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Beatrice Lillie managed to remember she was a punster, too, even when a waiter spilled a whole cup of coffee on her costly new evening gown. "Go," Miss Lillie told the crestfallen servitor, "and never darken my Dior again."

Rocky Graziano, ex-middleweight champ, was asked in a TV interview, "Were you ever afraid of an opponent?" The great man pondered momentarily, then blurted, "Naw, I was too stupid!" Later Rocky insisted that he once sent Sugar Ray Robinson reeling to the mat. "He tripped over me," explained Rocky.

A pair of newlyweds walked arm in arm to their mailbox on the first of the month. "Look, darling," cooed the bride estatically. "Our first bills!"

Difference In Senators Attitude To Fist Fights Of JFK Appointees

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—No senator will admit it publicly, but there's a significant difference between their attitude toward two Kennedy appointees who got into fist fights. The difference will affect the monthly gas and electric light bills of several millions of housewives. Here it is:

Fist Fighter No. 1—was Charles Meriwether of Alabama, nominated by Kennedy to be a director of the Export Import Bank. Meriwether was queried by Sen. Wayne Morse regarding a drunken fist fight in which he was embroiled, but ducked any reply, Morse also read to the Senate his correspondence with the FBI and Kennedy regarding the brawl. But the Senate was so anxious to confirm Meriwether it would not postpone debate long enough to get a 24-hour report.

Later it developed that Meriwether had admitted to friends that he had been arrested for getting drunk and into a fight. The matter had been hushed up in Alabama.

Fist Fighter No. 2—is Howard Morgan, nominated by Kennedy to be a member of the Federal Power Commission.

When Morgan was 22 years old and working his way through college at an Oregon Lumber Camp, two contractors got into a fist fight. One was Morgan's employer. The two were evenly matched until a truck driver working for the other contractor jumped on the back of Morgan's employer and started choking him. Morgan then jumped on the truck driver and pulled him off. Subsequently h. was hauled before a justice of the peace by the truck driver. The issue of guilt turned on whether Morgan's employer had asked him to come to his help.

"He was too busy defending himself from two men to hold a conference with me," Morgan explained.

"That was your mistake, young man," ruled the Justice of the Peace. "You took the initiative. Fine $25."

Because of this, and because Morgan failed to list this on his Form 57 when he became an officer in the Navy, the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee has held up his confirmation to the Federal Power Commission for weeks. This week Senators supposedly busy with the vital problems of Cuba and the economy are wasting each other's time conferring gravely over this fist fight.

The contrast between this and Meriwether's fist fight isn't apparent to the average person. But behind the scenes it gets down to tw. powerful lobbies. This is where the housewife's gas and electricity bills come in.

The Meriwether Contrast — Meriwether, who was rushed th.ough the Senate with no delay, had been chummy with the Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan and was once campaign manager for Adm. John Crommelin, one of the worst anti-semite rabblerousers in the nation. He was a politician, not a banker, nevertheless was put on the Export Import Bank. This bank lends money to African, Asian, Latin-American nations. It's important, but doesn't rule on gas rates and power sites. It doesn't worry any big lobbies.

The Morgan Contrast—Morgan, who has been held up by Senators for weeks, will rule on gas rates and hydro-power projects on the Federal Power Commission. That commission handles $45 billion invested by the public utilities, and $30 billion invested by the gas companies.

These giant lobbies contribute more to Senators' campaign funds than any single group. Sen. Hugh Scott of Philadelphia, who is leading the fight against Morgan, ordinarily tries to do right. He once opposed Sen. Joe McCarthy. But his biggest campaign contributor is the Pew family, which owns the Sun Oil Company. So in this case, Scott is engaging in McCarthyism. There are about 3,000,000 housewives in Pennsylvania whose gas bills will be lower if there's a good man on the FPC, but Hugh Scott is lining up with the Pew family and Sun Oil, no. with the housewives of his state.

The same Senate committee, incidentally, is holding up confirmation of Joseph Swidler, another Kennedy appointee, because he too has bucked the big utility lobbies.

Another Republican

Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky, however, the Republican National Chairman, is one Senator who rises above gas and oil.

When Morton received letters from Oregon Republicans telling him not to confirm Morgan, a Democrat, because of his youthful fist fight, he looked over the entire record.

The record showed that every one of the smears now brought up against Morgan as if new had been aired thoroughly in the Oregon papers for years, including a phony charge that he once received a stolen tire. And the people of Oregon, knowing the truth, elected Morgan to the Oregon Legislature and appointed him to other important positions. He had an outstanding record as Public Utilities Commissioner where he was tough with the utilities. That is the real reason — not the fist fight — the lobbies don't want him confirmed.

When Morgan, a Democrat, stepped down as Commissioner, Ex-Gov. Charles Sprague, a Republican, commented in his Salem, Oregon, "Statesman":

"The hostilities which Howard Morgan incurred in his political battles pursued him in the office of Public Utilities Commissioner. But his administration of this sensitive office appeared to be in strict accord with the law. His grip was firm . . . he has done his duty efficiently and conscientiously."

When Senator Morton, the Republican Chairman, saw this comment from the most respected Republican in Oregon, he observed: "Some of these people have been trying to make a sucker out of me."

In the evening, scores of millions of Americans turn on their television sets and see the news. At one point, the camera shows a courtroom in Jerusalem. A thin man who looks a little bit like Woody the Woodpecker sits in a birdcage. This is Adolf Eichmann. He is charged with ordering the murders of six million Jews.

Six million. That is twice the population of all Israel. If you could kill one person per minute, and never sleep, it would require 11½ years to do it. The interest in Eichmann is enormous. All over the world, people watch him smirk and sniff and adjust his headset.

In the United States, three television networks paid $50,000 apiece for the film tapes of the trial. It sounds like a lot of money, but it is only the beginning of the cost. For seven hours each day, two cameras are busy in the little court in Jerusalem. In the evening, one man cuts the material to one hour.

The tape is then rushed to Tel Aviv, 35 miles west. There it goes aboard an airliner bound for New York. In the morning, the jet comes down at Idlewild and men from NBC, CBS and ABC rush the package to studios, where it is put on a machine and sent on a cable to other television stations.

On West 66th Street, Joe Stamler, manager of WABC-TV, watches part of it come in. He stands in a room in which many machines are squeaking, squawking, and showing pictures of shows not yet on the air: Bob Cummings, Ann Sothern, The Roaring Twenties and Leave It To Beaver. It is like being in a cage with drunken mice.

Stamler nods to Al Hollender, program director. The reason that this tape is important to these men is that they are biting off a bigger chunk of the Eichmann trial than anyone else. Most stations use a few minutes of it as seasoning on their news broadcasts. WABC-TV, which is one station, not a network, uses a half hour of it every night and they employ a gray-haired reporter whose name escapes me to narrate the story of the trial.

Hollender studies the quality of the pictures and the sound — an admixture of Hebrew, German and English — and turns it over to Vincent Dempsey, producer. Dempsey is a sensitive, conscientious newsman who once worked for UP. His job is to take this one hour of tape and make a comprehensive half hour show of it.

He calls his director in. This man is Roger Shope, almost as broad as he is tall. The time is 11 a. m. and they watch John Kroak, a tape technician, rewind the two-inch brown tape on a big spool. He sets the minute and second clock on the machine and it starts to turn.

The courtroom comes up on a small screen and the three men watch as the camera moves around, waiting for the judges to show up. "Kill it," Dempsey says. "There's no action." Kroak rewinds again, and cuts the opening. He splices carefully because he not only has to cut a picture in motion, but also the sound which goes with it.

They work until 2 p. m., killing, cutting, listening, looking, splicing, editing. They put blank tapes in for station breaks and commercials. They clock each little sequence to the second. Dempsey makes notes. Shope stabs the stem of his stop watch.

At 3 p. m. they feel they have it in shape. The two men hurry across the street to Des Artistes for a fast sandwich and coffee. At 3:40 they are back in the news room asking Jesse Masse if there is anything new out of Jerusalem. Mr. Masse studies the latest news flashes. Nothing new.

At 4 p. m. they go to studio B with their narrator, and with Gil Hodges, who will recite the commercials. They sit on a booth and talk to the two cameramen by microphone. On the floor, Jim Flood and Jerry Fritz, camera directors, yell for quiet.

In the next studio, a young lady is rehearsing a weather report. They roll the tape. The narrator sits behind a desk, propped with books, and begins his little introductory chat. The tape comes on and all the parties to this drama run through their dozen mistakes, try it again, and again, and finally it sounds smooth.

At 5:15 p. m. they adjourn for coffee in the hall. It comes out of a machine and tastes like damp acorns. At 6, they are back in the studio, watching the sweep second hands of a wall clock. This is their god. When it moves enough times, Jim Flood yells "Ten seconds — quiet!"

A moment later, two little buttons of red light up on a camera and Flood points to Hodges. On cue, Mr. Hodges introduces the program. For better or for worse, it is on the air. In homes, some people turn their sets on. Some switch them off.

A half hour later, Dempsey puts his jacket on. "It was all right," he says wearily. "We got through one more day of it."

Iran: Another Crucial Outpost

Secretary Rusk's journey to Ankara tomorrow may be merely a matter of helping some important allies save face. Having traveled to Bangkok to attend the SEATO conference in March, and planning to attend the NATO conference in Oslo in May, Rusk could hardly pass up the meeting of foreign ministers of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO) this month without wounding the pride of the Middle East alliance and risking weakening its already flabby muscles.

On the other hand, Rusk could be carrying to his appointment in Ankara a message from President Kennedy indicating an American purpose to stiffen CENTO's back. This would take some doing.

Of CENTO's regional members, the strongest and surest is certainly Turkey, which is also the Eastern anchor of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and continues to furnish NATO its largest contingent of troops. Turkey has suffered a revolution and is now undergoing a painful process of renewing democratic institutions, but throughout all its foreign policy, singularly enough, has remained unchanged and its loyalty to its allies has never faltered.

After Turkey, Pakistan is our most powerful military ally in Asia, but the adjective is perhaps too strong. Pakistan's principal preoccupation, her long quarrel with India, has shown signs of lessening of late, as have Pakiston's economic troubles. But President Mohammed Ayub Khan has made only plodding progress in the direction of restoring democratic government.

The bridge state of Iran is the weakest member of CENTO. In his long interview with Walter Lippmann, Soviet Premier Khrushchev asserted that Iran had a very weak Communist party but that nevertheless corruption and the misery of the masses were surely producing a revolution. Khrushchev looked to inevitable attraction of Iran to the Communist orbit, even though he regarded the nation as "a poor country which is of no use to the Soviet Union."

If Iran goes Red, Pakistan will be isolated among Communist, otherwise hostile, or neutral states and CENTO almost certainly shattered. Indeed, in the Cold War Iran is almost as crucial an outpost as Laos or Cuba, and almost as gingerly defended.

Difference In Senators Attitude To Fist Fights Of JFK Appointees

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—No senator will admit it publicly, but there's a significant difference between their attitude toward two Kennedy appointees who got into fist fights. The difference will affect the monthly gas and electric light bills of several millions of housewives. Here it is:

Fist Fighter No. 1—was Charles Meriwether of Alabama, nominated by Kennedy to be a director of the Export Import Bank. Meriwether was queried by Sen. Wayne Morse regarding a drunken fist fight in which he was embroiled, but ducked any reply, Morse also read to the Senate his correspondence with the FBI and Kennedy regarding the brawl. But the Senate was so anxious to confirm Meriwether it would not postpone debate long enough to get a 24-hour report.

Later it developed that Meriwether had admitted to friends that he had been arrested for getting drunk and into a fight. The matter had been hushed up in Alabama.

Fist Fighter No. 2—is Howard Morgan, nominated by Kennedy to be a member of the Federal Power Commission.

When Morgan was 22 years old and working his way through college at an Oregon Lumber Camp, two contractors got into a fist fight. One was Morgan's employer. The two were evenly matched until a truck driver working for the other contractor jumped on the back of Morgan's employer and started choking him. Morgan then jumped on the truck driver and pulled him off. Subsequently h. was hauled before a justice of the peace by the truck driver. The issue of guilt turned on whether Morgan's employer had asked him to come to his help.

"He was too busy defending himself from two men to hold a conference with me," Morgan explained.

"That was your mistake, young man," ruled the Justice of the Peace. "You took the initiative. Fine $25."

Because of this, and because Morgan failed to list this on his Form 57 when he became an officer in the Navy, the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee has held up his confirmation to the Federal Power Commission for weeks. This week Senators supposedly busy with the vital problems of Cuba and the economy are wasting each other's time conferring gravely over this fist fight.

The contrast between this and Meriwether's fist fight isn't apparent to the average person. But behind the scenes it gets down to two powerful lobbies. This is where the housewife's gas and electricity bills come in.

The Meriwether Contrast — Meriwether, who was rushed through the Senate with no delay, had been chummy with the Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan and was once campaign manager for Adm. John Crommelin, one of the worst anti-semite rabblerousers in the nation. He was a politician, not a banker, nevertheless was put on the Export Import Bank. This bank lends money to African, Asian, Latin-American nations. It's important, but doesn't rule on gas rates and power sites. It doesn't worry any big lobbies.

The Morgan Contrast—Morgan, who has been held up by Senators for weeks, will rule on gas rates and hydro-power projects on the Federal Power Commission. That commission handles $45 billion invested by the public utilities, and $30 billion invested by the gas companies.

These giant lobbies contribute more to Senators' campaign funds than any single group. Sen. Hugh Scott of Philadelphia, who is leading the fight against Morgan, ordinarily tries to do right. He once opposed Sen. Joe McCarthy. But his biggest campaign contributor is the Pew family, which owns the Sun Oil Company. So in this case, Scott is engaging in McCarthyism. There are about 3,000,000 housewives in Pennsylvania whose gas bills will be lower if there's a good man on the FPC, but Hugh Scott is lining up with the Pew family and Sun Oil, no. with the housewives of his state.

The same Senate committee, incidentally, is holding up confirmation of Joseph Swidler, another Kennedy appointee, because he too has bucked the big utility lobbies.

Another Republican

Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky, however, the Republican National Chairman, is one Senator who rises above gas and oil.

When Morton received letters from Oregon Republicans telling him not to confirm Morgan, a Democrat, because of his youthful fist fight, he looked over the entire record.

The record showed that every one of the smears now brought up against Morgan as if new had been aired thoroughly in the Oregon papers for years, including a phony charge that he once received a stolen tire. And the people of Oregon, knowing the truth, elected Morgan to the Oregon Legislature and appointed him to other important positions. He had an outstanding record as Public Utilities Commissioner where he was tough with the utilities. That is the real reason — not the fist fight — the lobbies don't want him confirmed.

When Morgan, a Democrat, stepped down as Commissioner, Ex-Gov. Charles Sprague, a Republican, commented in his Salem, Oregon, "Statesman":

"The hostilities which Howard Morgan incurred in his political battles pursued him in the office of Public Utilities Commissioner. But his administration of this sensitive office appeared to be in strict accord with the law. His grip was firm . . . he has done his duty efficiently and conscientiously."

When Senator Morton, the Republican Chairman, saw this comment from the most respected Republican in Oregon, he observed: "Some of these people have been trying to make a sucker out of me."

U.S. Committed To Castro's Ultimate Downfall

By Stewart Alsop

EDITORS NOTE: Joseph Alsop is on a brief vacation. During his absence his brother Stewart will write the Alsop column

WASHINGTON

Sometimes it is useful to state the obvious. After the events of the last tragic week, and especially after what President Kennedy said in his speech to the editors, Fidel Castro cannot indefinitely be permitted to survive in triumph. The prestige and even the honor of the United States are now obviously and wholly committed to Castro's ultimate downfall.

There is hardly anybody in the higher reaches of the Kennedy Administration who does not agree that this commitment to Castro's destruction now in fact exists. And yet President Kennedy and his advisors certainly did not plan the commitment. On the contrary, the President's key decisions in regard to the Cuban operation were specifically designed to avoid such a commitment.

There were two key decisions made by the President after he decided to give the operation a green light. The plan for the operation which the President inherited from President Eisenhower involved the use of American armed force — for example, naval air power — if necessary to assure the success of the operation. President Kennedy's first key decision was to rule out the use of any American forces whatever, under any conditions whatever. His second key decision was to announce the first decision, just as the operation began.

The public announcement that American forces would under no circumstances be involved was reiterated twice by the President himself and four times with even more emphasis by Secretary of State Dean Rusk. The announcement obviously greatly reduced the likelihood of a general uprising in Cuba, which was the main purpose of the Cuban operation. It also quite unnecessarily tied the President's hands in advance.

After the operation began to go bad, at an all day meeting at the White House on Wednesday, certain of the President's military and civilian advisors favored active American intervention. They argued that the operation simply could not be allowed to fail, if only because the United States would in that event become in the eyes of the world the most papery of paper tigers. The President might well have favored this course himself, if he had not so publicly tied his own hands in advance. Why did he do so? This reporter has tried hard to find the answer to that question, and must confess a partial failure. The fact is that there has been something oddly uncharacteristic about the President's role in the Cuban affair. To be sure, since the operation failed, his actions have been wholly characteristic of the man—he has taken the whole responsibility for the failure on himself and he has passed the word down the line that there will be no recriminations and no scrapegoat hunt. The uncharacteristic phase came earlier.

Throughout his career — as for example in his decision to enter the key Wisconsin and West Virginia primaries last year — Kennedy has always looked before he leaped. He had looked very hard, carefully weighing every conceivable factor likely to affect the outcome. And then he has leaped very hard, using every conceivable means to assure success.

In the looking phase of the Cuban operation, Kennedy was certainly the victim of bad intelligence. But intelligence is and always has been two-thirds guesswork, and it is hard to believe that the President adequately weighed the consequences of failure. This is further borne out by the fact that the leaping phase of the operation was, by past Kennedy standards, so uncharacteristically tentative. The idea that Castro could be brought down without any risk at all of using American men or arms recalls the old rhyme of dubious origin:

Mother, may I go out to swim?
Yes, my darling daughter;
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb
And don't go near the water.

At least part of the explanation for the markedly un-Kennedy-like quality of the President's role in the first phase of the Cuban operation lies with United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, whose voice is listened to with respect in the Kennedy Administration. From his own point of view it was quite natural that Stevenson should strongly favor a categorical promise that American forces would not be used in Cuba. The peculiar holier-than-thou public stance which succeeding American delegations to the U.N. have always thought it necessary to assume was difficult to sustain in any case, in view of the obvious American complicity in the Cuban operation. Without the Kennedy promise, it would have been impossible to sustain.

Kennedy has spoken of "the lessons we have learned" from the tragic Cuban episode. One lesson, surely, is that what pleases the majority of the strangely assorted gaggle of more or less sovereign nations which now constitute the U.N. General Assembly does not necessarily serve the national interest of the United States. Another lesson is summed up in the old adage, "If you strike at a king, you must strike to kill."

Some day, one way or another, the American commitment to bring Castro down will have to be honored. The commitment can only be honored if the American government is willing, if necessary, to strike to kill, even if that risks the shedding of American blood.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Income Tax

Now it is the National Committee for Economic Freedom that comes along with a proposal to abolish the Income Tax. This has to do with the proposed 23rd Amendment which has passed the Legislatures of Wyoming, Texas, Nevada and Louisiana. This proposed Amendment reads:

"Section 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Section 2. The constitutions or laws of any state, or the laws of the United States shall not be subject to the terms of any foreign or domestic agreement which would abrogate this amendment.

"Section 3. The activities of the United States Government which violate the intent and purposes of this amendment shall, within a period of three years from the date of the ratification of this amendment, be liquidated and the properties and facilities affected shall be sold.

"Section 4. Three years after the ratification of this amendment the sixteenth article of amendments to the Constitution of the United States shall stand repealed and thereafter Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates, and/or gifts."

Unfortunately Section 1 is utterly impossible if we are ever to defend this country. The manufacture of the atom and hydrogen bombs or the atomic submarine involves our government in considerable business enterprise. If we are forced to go into Cuba alone these costs will be greater.

Those who favor this Amendment say:

"The 'Proposed 23rd Amendment', would force the sale of the land and facilities of federal corporate activities back to the American people from whom they were taken, and thus cut the National Debt more than $65,000,000,000 . . ."

This program ignores the fact that we are engaged in war with Soviet Russia and that it is necessary to have allies, to have bases abroad, to purchase land in this country.

The Income Tax is not a wise tax in a capitalist country and it is collected with brutality in this country. Also, there is obvious waste in the cost of Government. Let us say, without figuring too closely, that the waste is as high as $10,000,000,000, which is twice the amount estimated by the Hoover Commission. We still have to find about $80,000,000,000, to meet essential expenditures, about $40,000,000,000 of which goes to war and defense.

Surely those who favor abolishing the Income Tax do not propose to make us defenseless and to turn us over to the kindly ministrations of Khrushchev or Castro. True, the Income Tax takes a great deal of our income, but these devils will take all of our capital.

That being so, their problem obviously is not so much to abolish the Income Tax as to propose another form of taxation that might be more equable and just. Certainly, one thing that can be done is to make it a felony to move funds abroad with the object of avoiding or evading, choose your own term, taxes. It should also be law that funds deposited abroad to evade or avoid taxes are not inheritable by Americans and may be totally confiscated if brought back in any form. This might help a bit and put some crooks where they belong.

But that still would not solve the problem. There would nevertheless have to be taxes for the manufacture of rockets and missiles and submarines, to say nothing of other purposes. If we are not to have the Income Tax, we might use a Transactions Tax, but the amount needed would be about the same.

As our economy stands today "duties and excises" will not bring in enough to take care of an $80,000,000,000 budget or even a $70,000,000,000 dollar budget. One of the arguments used by the anti-Income Tax advocates is that Section 8 of Article 1 of the Constitution is sufficient and all else should be repealed. But that article calls for the provision for "common defense and general welfare of the United States." The common defense is a very costly business and although I hate the Income Tax, I do not see how we can get the money we need except by this tax or a Transactions Tax.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

SPACE FEAT—The Soviet feat of successfully returning an orbiting man to earth is the latest — and expected — blow to United States world prestige from Russia's determined efforts in the space and missile field.

Ever since the Soviets successfully placed the first man-made satellite in orbit more than three years ago, the U. S. has been attributing the feats to superior thrust of Russian rockets. This, roughly, remains the official position of this country.

However, some American scientists are beginning t. express unhappiness about this reiterated line. They contend privately that efforts of national personages to defend their political positions in this fashion are having the effect of lulling the American public to sleep, instead of stirring it up to the point where it will demand the kind of spending necessary to overtake Russia in space.

For instance, both Russia and the U. S. have sufficient rocket thrust to place a man in orbit around the earth. Yet, it was Russia that accomplished the feat. These scientists ask: Why didn't Uncle Sam step up his activities and try harder to beat the Russians?

The answer isn't hard to find. Individuals connected with the man-in-space program can point to many reasons why the American effort could not safely be speeded up. But it all seems to come down to budgeting limitations which had the effect of stretching out the research and development programs. Nearly all of them concede that if more money, more scientists, engineers, researchers, etc., could have been employed, the race might have had a different ending.

It is true, as Kennedy administration leaders contend, that the Russian accomplishment neither strengthens their military potential, nor weakens ours. But in the broadest sense, countless millions of the world's inhabitants are looking more and more to Russia as the leader in science and technology, and the military implications of this swing could some day be decisive.

Erythromelalgia-The Burning Skin Syndrome

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Several years ago a milddle aged man walked into the clinic at Northwestern university medical school and asked to see a physician because his feet were burning. He wasn't kidding, his extremities were fiery red and almost as hot as an iron.

"When they get like this," he said, "they burn, throb, and ache. At night I sleep with my feet outside the covers and the only time I'm comfortable is when I soak them in cold water."

Our patient had erythomelalgia —the burning skin syndrome. The arteries of the lower extremities dilate and the burning sensation stems from too much blood in the feet. The sensation is somewhat related to the burning that occurs when cold extremities are warmed by taking a hot bath or standing before a fire. It is noted occasionally in elderly persons and may be associated with high blood pressure, arthritis, or polycythemia (too many red corpuscles and too much hemoglobin).

Anything that increases dilatation of the arteries aggravates distress. This occurs when the legs hang down as when watching TV, during exercise, or when exposed to warmth. Cold contracts the vessels and relieves symptoms.

The best test for erythromelalgia is to cool the feet while the individual is lying quietly on a bed or an examining table. He is comfortable at this time. Then the extremities are warmed and when the skin temperature reaches a certain height, the burning sensation returns.

Aspirin is the best remedy but its action is not too well understood. Distress also is relieved by Plaquenil (chloroquine), a drug used in the treatment of malaria.

SORE NOSE

Ulcers, pimples, and unusual dryness are the common organic causes. We usually suspect nervousness when the nose is out of joint because of frustration, anxiety, or anger.

Never, unless the organs harbor infection that encourages frequent sore throats and poor health.

Yes, several. Nilevar is an example of a hormone product that is stripped of the sex stimulating factor.

G. R. writes: A friend is going to be operated on and the surgeon told him he may need a transfusion or two afterward. Another friend says transfusions are dangerous because the patient may get hepatitis. Is this one man's opinion?

REPLY

No. The patient will not be given a transfusion unless it is needed. If it is necessary, the small risk of developing serum what.
hepatitis is preferable to you know what.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Triple Play Highlights Beall's 6-4 Win Over Bruce

Losers' Rally Snuffed Out In 6th Inning

Jim Diehl Victor; Allegany-Fort Hill Game Reset Today

A triple play snuffed out a sixth inning rally by Bruce yesterday as Beall High's Mountaineers defeated the Bulldogs, 6-4, in an Allegany County Baseball League game at Frostburg.

The three-play killing came after Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs had shoved over three runs and had the bases loaded with nobody out in the sixth.

Beall starter Jim Diehl was coasting behind a 6-1 lead as the sixth opened, but Bruce kayoed the Mountaineer righthander with three walks and singles by Ron Raines and Mike Warnick.

Relieved By Allen

Diehl was relieved by Francis Allen with two runs home and the sacks loaded. Allen promptly wild pitched the third run in and walked Gary Morris to again fill the bases.

With Bruce trailing 6-4, Jay Morris hit a soft liner to second which Jim Wilson caught at his shoetops. He flipped the ball to first baseman John Chaney to nail Gary Morris for the second out and Chaney's throw across the diamond to Jerry Cole nipped another Bruce runner at third to complete the triple play.

Beall jumped on starter and loser Marshall Jones for three tallies in the first as the Bruce righthander failed to locate the plate. After Jones fanned Chaney to start the frame, he issued three consecutive passes to force home a run and a Bruce error allowed a second run in. Harper's single off reliefer Delilo plated the third run.

The Mountaineers added three more tallies in the fifth on a walk, two errors and a double by Haupt and made them hold up for the winning margin.

Bulldogs' First Loss

The loss was the first for the Bulldogs who opened their County League season Monday with a 12-4 triumph over Valley. The game was the first of the season for Coach Enordo Arnone's Mountaineers.

Haupt had two hits for Beall while Price and Bob Wilson banged out a pair of safeties for Bruce in yesterday's encounter.

Three other league games fell by the wayside yesterday as rain and wet grounds forced the postponement of the Allegany-Fort Hill and Flintstone-LaSalle contests in Cumberland and Valley at Mt. Savage.

Allegany and Fort Hill were reset for today on the Sentinels' diamond at 4 p. m., weather permitting. The lineups:

Booby Traps Used In Orchard To Stop Deer Damaging Trees

EXPLOSION SCARES DEER—Here is what the booby trap to frighten deer away from the Dillon orchard in Washington County looks like. The experiment is being tried to rid the orchard of deer who have done severe damage to fruit trees. As soon as the animal touches the cord it sets off the trap and the explosion causes the deer to scram. The trapped area is posted against trespassing. It is hoped the exploding booby traps will discourage the whitetails from remaining in the area.

Booby traps are being used as an experiment in the Dillon orchard, near Sideling Mountain in Washington county, in a move to frighten deer who have inflicted severe damage to fruit trees in that area.

As a part of the deer study project of the Department of Research and Education, together with the Maryland Game Commission and with the permission of the American Fruit Growers Corporation, a block of orchard land has been set aside at the Dillon orchard for the experiment on deer deterrents.

This particular area has been planted three times with young apple trees because of severe deer damage and the deer herd is now browsing so heavily in this block that it will be necessary to plant it for the fourth time.

Hope To Discourage Deer

In an effort to discourage the deer from remaining in this area, Theodore Thoerig and Dr. V. F. Flyger of the Department of Research and Education have set out a field of booby traps.

This area has been marked off with a heavy white cord to which the booby traps are attached. The booby traps on the string are from 24 to 30 inches above the ground, fastened to stakes and when a deer touches the cord it sets off the trap which explodes a distance away from the deer, frightening the animal from the orchard. This trapped area is on the ground posted against all trespassing of any nature and is visible from a safe distance away.

Land Is Posted

On Sunday, April 23, W. E. Exline of Hancock, while hunting mushrooms, trespassed on the posted area. He said that when he emerged from the woods into the orchard, he noticed all the white cord and upon going over to examine it, tripped and fell on the cord, causing him to suffer a broken thumb and two lacerated fingers when the booby trap exploded.

Inasmuch as this orchard land is and has been posted against all trespassing for a number of years this is one time that curiosity did not pay.

Petersburg Downs Keyser, Mathias Cops Pair In PVC

Jackets, Eagles, Wardensville Win; Franklin Drops Two

Mathias and Petersburg continued their unbeaten ways in the Potomac Valley Conference yesterday with the latter turning back a visiting Keyser nine, 11-3, while Mathias swept a doubleheader at Franklin, 13-8 and 7-4.

Jack Boor stopped Keyser on four hits, blanking the Tornado until the final inning, as Petersburg won its fourth straight game and second over Keyser. The Vikings whipped the Tornado, 10-1, in their series opener earlier this year.

Ernie Nelson banged out three hits and John Koontz and Louis Alt chipped in with home runs to lead the 13-hit Petersburg attack. Koontz' circuit belt came with one aboard in the second and Alt hit a solo blast in the sixth.

Dick Dawson took the loss for Keyser.

Mathias Wins Pair

Mathias took a pair of five-inning games from Franklin to hike its winning streak to six in a row. The first game was a make-up of a previously postponed contest and the second was a regularly scheduled game.

Lowell Mathias picked up his fourth pitching victory in the opener as he held Franklin to five hits. He was backed by some lusty clouting as Steve Taylor cracked a two-run triple and Gary Strawderman hit for the circuit. Floyd Propst absorbed the defeat.

In the nightcap Mathias, Ed Mongold, Taylor and Ed Fogle each collected two hits for the victors as Al Makowski went the route with a six-hitter. The win was the second for Makowski.

Mongold and Mathias banged out triples, Mongold had a double, and Taylor hit a home run in the winners' nine-hit barrage.

Dixon Orndorff edged Jerry Alkire in a hurling duel as Wardensville downed Capon Bridge, 1-0, in a league encounter on the latter's diamond.

Game's Only Run

The game's only run came home on Dixon Orndorff's sacrifice fly to George Orndorff with the bases loaded in the first inning. He also obtained Wardensville's only hit off Alkire's slants with a fourth-inning single. Capon Bridge collected three hits off Orndorff.

Fort Ashby's Eagles rallied in the Fort Ashby's Eagles rallied in the home half of the seventh to nudge Romney, 6-5, as Bob Barnes drove in the tying run with a single and later scored the winning tally on Charles Hinkle's one-base sock.

Wayne "Lefty" Linn was the winning pitcher while Johnny Mathias was the loser in relief of David Carl.

Barnes had two hits for the winners while Brooks garnered three of Romney's nine bingles.

The victory was the first for Fort Ashby in four PVC games. Romney now is 3-2 in the circuit.

Jackets Win Slugfest

In a slugfest at Moorefield, the Yellowjackets handed Circleville's Indians their fifth straight league defeat, 18-14, coming up with 10 runs in a big sixth inning after trailing 14-8.

The win was the fourth for Moorefield and pitcher Dave Vance picked up his second pitching triumph. Kisamore had three hits for Circleville while Vance and James Flinn each had two for the victors.

Woody Held Ailing With Pulled Muscle

BALTIMORE (AP) — Shortstop Woody Held of the Cleveland Indians, bothered by a stiff neck and sore shoulders, visited an orthopedic surgeon here Tuesday for a physical checkup.

Held said Dr. Edmond J. McDonnell, a specialist who treats professional athletes, prescribed heat treatments for a pulled muscle and indicated the injury was not serious.

The Indian shortstop, who hit 21 home runs last season, has failed to connect for the circuit in 10 games this year and is hitting an enemic .103.

"I pulled the muscle in Kansas City four or five days ago," Held said. "It was a cold day and we didn't have any batting or fielding practice. When I swung at a pitch, I felt something give. Then it started to stiffen."

Triple Play Highlights Beall's 6-4 Win Over Bruce

Losers' Rally Snuffed Out In 6th Inning

Jim Diehl Victor; Allegany-Fort Hill Game Reset Today

A triple play snuffed out a sixth inning rally by Bruce yesterday as Beall High's Mountaineers defeated the Bulldogs, 6-4, in an Allegany County Baseball League game at Frostburg.

The three-play killing came after Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs had shoved over three runs and had the bases loaded with nobody out in the sixth.

Beall starter Jim Diehl was coasting behind a 6-1 lead as the sixth opened, but Bruce kayoed the Mountaineer righthander with three walks and singles by Ron Raines and Mike Warnick.

Relieved By Allen

Diehl was relieved by Francis Allen with two runs home and the sacks loaded. Allen promptly wild pitched the third run in and walked Gary Morris to again fill the bases.

With Bruce trailing 6-4, Jay Morris hit a soft liner to second which Jim Wilson caught at his shoetops. He flipped the ball to first baseman John Chaney to nail Gary Morris for the second out and Chaney's throw across the diamond to Jerry Cole nipped another Bruce runner at third to complete the triple play.

Beall jumped on starter and loser Marshall Jones for three tallies in the first as the Bruce righthander failed to locate the plate. After Jones fanned Chaney to start the frame, he issued three consecutive passes to force home a run and a Bruce error allowed a second run in. Harper's single off reliefer Delilo plated the third run.

The Mountaineers added three more tallies in the fifth on a walk, two errors and a double by Haupt and made them hold up for the winning margin.

Bulldogs' First Loss

The loss was the first for the Bulldogs who opened their County League season Monday with a 12-4 triumph over Valley. The game was the first of the season for Coach Enordo Arnone's Mountaineers.

Haupt had two hits for Beall while Price and Bob Wilson banged out a pair of safeties for Bruce in yesterday's encounter.

Three other league games fell by the wayside yesterday as rain and wet grounds forced the postponement of the Allegany-Fort Hill and Flintstone-LaSalle contests in Cumberland and Valley at Mt. Savage.

Allegany and Fort Hill were reset for today on the Sentinels' diamond at 4 p. m., weather permitting. The lineups:

Booby Traps Used In Orchard To Stop Deer Damaging Trees

EXPLOSION SCARES DEER—Here is what the booby trap to frighten deer away from the Dillon orchard in Washington County looks like. The experiment is being tried to rid the orchard of deer who have done severe damage to fruit trees. As soon as the animal touches the cord it sets off the trap and the explosion causes the deer to scram. The trapped area is posted against trespassing. It is hoped the exploding booby traps will discourage the whitetails from remaining in the area.

Booby traps are being used as an experiment in the Dillon orchard, near Sideling Mountain in Washington county, in a move to frighten deer who have inflicted severe damage to fruit trees in that area.

As a part of the deer study project of the Department of Research and Education, together with the Maryland Game Commission and with the permission of the American Fruit Growers Corporation, a block of orchard land has been set aside at the Dillon orchard for the experiment on deer deterrents.

This particular area has been planted three times with young apple trees because of severe deer damage and the deer herd is now browsing so heavily in this block that it will be necessary to plant it for the fourth time.

Hope To Discourage Deer

In an effort to discourage the deer from remaining in this area, Theodore Thoerig and Dr. V. F. Flyger of the Department of Research and Education have set out a field of booby traps.

This area has been marked off with a heavy white cord to which the booby traps are attached. The booby traps on the string are from 24 to 30 inches above the ground, fastened to stakes and when a deer touches the cord it sets off the trap which explodes a distance away from the deer, frightening the animal from the orchard. This trapped area is on the ground posted against all trespassing of any nature and is visible from a safe distance away.

Land Is Posted

On Sunday, April 23, W. E. Exline of Hancock, while hunting mushrooms, trespassed on the posted area. He said that when he emerged from the woods into the orchard, he noticed all the white cord and upon going over to examine it, tripped and fell on the cord, causing him to suffer a broken thumb and two lacerated fingers when the booby trap exploded.

Inasmuch as this orchard land is and has been posted against all trespassing for a number of years this is one time that curiosity did not pay.

Petersburg Downs Keyser, Mathias Cops Pair In PVC

Jackets, Eagles, Wardensville Win; Franklin Drops Two

Mathias and Petersburg continued their unbeaten ways in the Potomac Valley Conference yesterday with the latter turning back a visiting Keyser nine, 11-3, while Mathias swept a doubleheader at Franklin, 13-8 and 7-4.

Jack Boor stopped Keyser on four hits, blanking the Tornado until the final inning, as Petersburg won its fourth straight game and second over Keyser. The Vikings whipped the Tornado, 10-1, in their series opener earlier this year.

Ernie Nelson banged out three hits and John Koontz and Louis Alt chipped in with home runs to lead the 13-hit Petersburg attack. Koontz' circuit belt came with one aboard in the second and Alt hit a solo blast in the sixth.

Dick Dawson took the loss for Keyser.

Mathias Wins Pair

Mathias took a pair of five-inning games from Franklin to hike its winning streak to six in a row. The first game was a make-up of a previously postponed contest and the second was a regularly scheduled game.

Lowell Mathias picked up his fourth pitching victory in the opener as he held Franklin to five hits. He was backed by some lusty clouting as Steve Taylor cracked a two-run triple and Gary Strawderman hit for the circuit. Floyd Propst absorbed the defeat.

In the nightcap Mathias, Ed Mongold, Taylor and Ed Fogle each collected two hits for the victors as Al Makowski went the route with a six-hitter. The win was the second for Makowski.

Mongold and Mathias banged out triples, Mongold had a double, and Taylor hit a home run in the winners' nine-hit barrage.

Dixon Orndorff edged Jerry Alkire in a hurling duel as Wardensville downed Capon Bridge, 1-0, in a league encounter on the latter's diamond.

Game's Only Run

The game's only run came home on Dixon Orndorff's sacrifice fly to George Orndorff with the bases loaded in the first inning. He also obtained Wardensville's only hit off Alkire's slants with a fourth-inning single. Capon Bridge collected three hits off Orndorff.

Fort Ashby's Eagles rallied in the Fort Ashby's Eagles rallied in the home half of the seventh to nudge Romney, 6-5, as Bob Barnes drove in the tying run with a single and later scored the winning tally on Charles Hinkle's one-base sock.

Wayne "Lefty" Linn was the winning pitcher while Johnny Mathias was the loser in relief of David Carl.

Barnes had two hits for the winners while Brooks garnered three of Romney's nine bingles.

The victory was the first for Fort Ashby in four PVC games. Romney now is 3-2 in the circuit.

Jackets Win Slugfest

In a slugfest at Moorefield, the Yellowjackets handed Circleville's Indians their fifth straight league defeat, 18-14, coming up with 10 runs in a big sixth inning after trailing 14-8.

The win was the fourth for Moorefield and pitcher Dave Vance picked up his second pitching triumph. Kisamore had three hits for Circleville while Vance and James Flinn each had two for the victors.

Woody Held Ailing With Pulled Muscle

BALTIMORE (AP) — Shortstop Woody Held of the Cleveland Indians, bothered by a stiff neck and sore shoulders, visited an orthopedic surgeon here Tuesday for a physical checkup.

Held said Dr. Edmond J. McDonnell, a specialist who treats professional athletes, prescribed heat treatments for a pulled muscle and indicated the injury was not serious.

The Indian shortstop, who hit 21 home runs last season, has failed to connect for the circuit in 10 games this year and is hitting an enemic .103.

"I pulled the muscle in Kansas City four or five days ago," Held said. "It was a cold day and we didn't have any batting or fielding practice. When I swung at a pitch, I felt something give. Then it started to stiffen."

Birds Whip Tribe, 5-2

Wilhelm Preserves Barber Victory

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm of the Baltimore Orioles had to come out of the bullpen to strike out Jimmy Piersall in the ninth inning Tuesday night and preserve a 5-2 victory for Steve Barber over the Cleveland Indians.

Barber apparently had an easy victory in the final frame when he struck out the first two batters, both pinch hitters. But Tito Francona lined a single for the fifth hit off Barber, and Johnny Temple drew Barber's fifth walk. Wilhelm was summoned in and he set down Piersall on three strikes.

Barber, in winning his second decision in three starts, did not permit a hit until the sixth inning when Temple smashed a two-out double off the left field wall. Willie Kirkland's single scored him.

The Orioles had taken a 5-0 lead by that time with Jim Gentile's third homer, a two-run blast in the first giving Barber a quick cushion. In the fifth, Gentile knocked in a third run with a single that scored Brooks Robinson.

Gary Bell, Cleveland starter, suffered his third loss without a victory and was removed after five innings after yielding six of the seven Oriole hits. Steve Hamilton and Russ Heman averted further damage in the remaining three innings.

Wilhelm Preserves Barber Victory

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm of the Baltimore Orioles had to come out of the bullpen to strike out Jimmy Piersall in the ninth inning Tuesday night and preserve a 5-2 victory for Steve Barber over the Cleveland Indians.

Barber apparently had an easy victory in the final frame when he struck out the first two batters, both pinch hitters. But Tito Francona lined a single for the fifth hit off Barber, and Johnny Temple drew Barber's fifth walk. Wilhelm was summoned in and he set down Piersall on three strikes.

Barber, in winning his second decision in three starts, did not permit a hit until the sixth inning when Temple smashed a two-out double off the left field wall. Willie Kirkland's single scored him.

The Orioles had taken a 5-0 lead by that time with Jim Gentile's third homer, a two-run blast in the first giving Barber a quick cushion. In the fifth, Gentile knocked in a third run with a single that scored Brooks Robinson.

Gary Bell, Cleveland starter, suffered his third loss without a victory and was removed after five innings after yielding six of the seven Oriole hits. Steve Hamilton and Russ Heman averted further damage in the remaining three innings.

Stocks Rack Up Largest Advance In 4½ Months

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored their biggest gain in 4½ months Tuesday, recovering nearly all of their losses suffered in the prior session.

Transactions totaled 4,670,000 shares, only 90,000 shares heavier than Monday and a relatively narrow 1,288 issues crossed the tape. An estimated $5.7 billion was restored to the aggregate value of all listed stocks.

Blue chips prominent on the advance included American Telephone up 4⅛, Du Pont up 2⅞, Johns-Manville up 3¼, United Aircraft up 2⅞, U.S. Steel up 3 Union Carbide 2 and General Foods, American Tobacco, Chrysler, International Nickel, Procter & Gamble and California Standard up more than a point.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	6 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♥

Today's hand came to me with a vehement rebuke from the woman who submitted it. She was bitter over having followed, to her severe loss, the advice I had handed out in one of my texts. It was on the subject of bidding slams and I observed that when you are quite sure you can make a slam and know the contract best suited for the hand it is advisable to bid it straightforwardly without running around corners and making a big to-do. And she quoted me verbatim: "In the first place, your partner will have no difficulty in making it, and in the second place everybody at the table will be impressed with your dashing manner." Her complaint was this. "As North, I followed your advice. In the first place my partner had no difficulty going down one and in the second place, no one at the table was the least bit impressed."

While in a sense I sympathize with her, I should like to say on my own behalf that there is such a thing as being taken too literally. I am afraid that she cannot win me over to the soundness of her leap to a slam. "I didn't see how he could miss if he had an opening bid," she said. Well, he had 15 high card points, and he could very readily miss.

Sympathy goes out to her because proper play could have landed the contract. In an effort to dispose of the losing diamond, declarer placed his trust in a three-three break of the club suit, hoping to discard the losing diamond on dummy's fourth club. Since an even break of an even number of cards (six) is against the odds, declarer should have sought a line of play that offered a greater chance of success. One was available: the chance that the club honors were in different hands (plus the added chance that East held them both.)

After drawing trumps a low club is led from dummy and the nine finessed. This will lose to West's jack and declarer wins his return and another low club is led from dummy and the ten finessed. The losing diamond is then discarded on dummy's king of clubs.

The recommended play will lose only when West holds both the queen and jack of clubs. In other words, declarer affords himself a 3 to 1 chance for success.

SRC Chairman

act as a liaison unit with the real estate and housing industry.

He said the SRC feels local interests can do the job better than any "super-duper" agency.

Mr. Frederick said it has been his experience that 90 per cent of the relocation difficulty encountered in this county could be eliminated if FHA financing were available.

Construction of the Thruway, the SRC said, will take property assessed at some $1,444,000 from the city tax books.

Mr. Funk said he has been told there is a housing shortage here and that builders and governmental agencies should be alerted to the fact the Thruway is moving ahead on an accelerated schedule.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mayor Keech announced that any resident who has a question in connection with the Thruway should contact the SRC as soon as possible.

Mr. Funk also spoke to the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday and said that before the end of this year there will be seven contracts underway or nearing completion on U. S. Route 40 at a total cost of $9,882,000.

He added the SRC has embarked on a building program to make Route 40 an economic and tourist asset to the Western Maryland community.

Once Route 40 has been improved in this area, Mr. Funk said business and civic leaders in this section should band together and set up architectural standards in order to keep the highway from becoming another "neonized" death strip which drivers either do not use or do use only as a means to get somewhere else.

In conclusion, Mr. Funk said now is the time for the highway to the west to shoulder the responsibility of building the economy.

The SRC will do everything it can to make the new road efficient and suitable to fulfill its purpose, but it will be up to the people of this region to keep it that way, the SRC head said.

Meeting Date Changed

The Cresap Homemakers Club will meet at the PE service department for a food demonstration today at 10 a. m. A business session will follow. This will take the place of the usual meeting Thursday.

Films To Be Shown

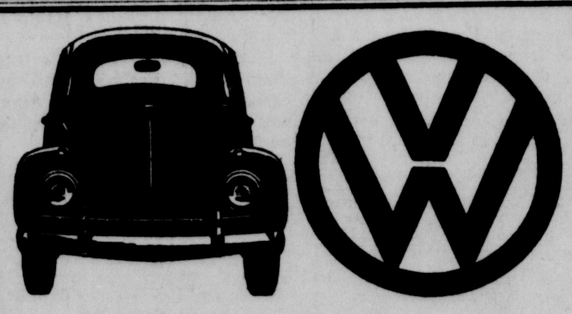

Colored slides of a trip to the Holy Land will be shown at St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Friday evening at 8. Thomas Lohr Richards will be the narrator. The public is invited.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♠	Pass	6♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♥

Today's hand came to me with a vehement rebuke from the woman who submitted it. She was bitter over having followed, to her severe loss, the advice I had handed out in one of my texts. It was on the subject of bidding slams and I observed that when you are quite sure you can make a slam and know the contract best suited for the hand it is advisable to bid it straightforwardly without running around corners and making a big to-do. And she quoted me verbatim: "In the first place, your partner will have no difficulty in making it, and in the second place everybody at the table will be impressed with your dashing manner." Her complaint was this. "As North, I followed your advice. In the first place my partner had no difficulty going down one and in the second place, no one at the table was the least bit impressed."

While in a sense I sympathize with her, I should like to say on my own behalf that there is such a thing as being taken too literally. I am afraid that she cannot win me over to the soundness of her leap to a slam. "I didn't see how he could miss if he had an opening bid," she said. Well, he had 15 high card points, and he could very readily miss.

Sympathy goes out to her because proper play could have landed the contract. In an effort to dispose of the losing diamond, declarer placed his trust in a three-three break of the club suit, hoping to discard the losing diamond on dummy's fourth club. Since an even break of an even number of cards (six) is against the odds, declarer should have sought a line of play that offered a greater chance of success. One was available: the chance that the club honors were in different hands (plus the added chance that East held them both.)

After drawing trumps a low club is led from dummy and the nine finessed. This will lose to West's jack and declarer wins his return and another low club is led from dummy and the ten finessed. The losing diamond is then discarded on dummy's king of clubs.

The recommended play will lose only when West holds both the queen and jack of clubs. In other words, declarer affords himself a 3 to 1 chance for success.

SRC Chairman

act as a liaison unit with the real estate and housing industry.

He said the SRC feels local interests can do the job better than any "super-duper" agency.

Mr. Frederick said it has been his experience that 90 per cent of the relocation difficulty encountered in this county could be eliminated if FHA financing were available.

Construction of the Thruway, the SRC said, will take property assessed at some $1,444,000 from the city tax books.

Mr. Funk said he has been told there is a housing shortage here and that builders and governmental agencies should be alerted to the fact the Thruway is moving ahead on an accelerated schedule.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mayor Keech announced that any resident who has a question in connection with the Thruway should contact the SRC as soon as possible.

Mr. Funk also spoke to the Cumberland Rotary Club yesterday and said that before the end of this year there will be seven contracts underway or nearing completion on U. S. Route 40 at a total cost of $9,882,000.

He added the SRC has embarked on a building program to make Route 40 an economic and tourist asset to the Western Maryland community.

Once Route 40 has been improved in this area, Mr. Funk said business and civic leaders in this section should band together and set up architectural standards in order to keep the highway from becoming another "neonized" death strip which drivers either do not use or do use only as a means to get somewhere else.

In conclusion, Mr. Funk said now is the time for the highway to the west to shoulder the responsibility of building the economy.

The SRC will do everything it can to make the new road efficient and suitable to fulfill its purpose, but it will be up to the people of this region to keep it that way, the SRC head said.

SRC Chairman Briefs City On Thruway Plans

$23,000,000 Project Is Aired At Meeting

John B. Funk, chairman-director of the State Roads Commission, said here yesterday he was confident the City of Cumberland "with whatever assistance we can give" can solve problems arising from the relocation of people and businesses during the construction of the Cumberland Thruway.

He acknowledges problems will arise from the construction of the facility which will cost some $23,000,000 exclusive of right of way costs.

Will Expedite Work

Mr. Funk advised officials of the City of Cumberland, at a meeting yesterday afternoon in City Hall, that work on the Thruway be scheduled on an ever increasing tempo and that all portions will be completed or under construction by 1965.

Mr. Funk was accompanied by Roland Jones, SRC urban coordinator; John D. Bushby, District 6 engineer, and Henry F. Frederick, District 6 right of way engineer.

The City was represented by Mayor J. Edwin Keech, Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum.

Some 16 interested citizens, including representatives of utilities, attended the meeting held in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

Outlines Schedule

Here is the current schedule of the SRC for advertising the huge Thruway program:

To be advertised this August is the contract for a bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as part of the south approach to the Thruway.

Bids will be asked in January 1962 for the Industrial Boulevard extension, which will run from West Street to Williams Street.

During the summer of 1962, the SRC plans to advertise the Overhead Bridge segment, which will run about 3,500 feet from Maryland Avenue to Johnson Street.

Scheduled for advertising between July 1963 and July 1964 is the East Extension running from Maryland Avenue to Willowbrook Road and a bridge over Kelly Boulevard.

The last section, the West Approach, running from near Smallwood Street to Route 220 is scheduled to be advertised in July 1964.

Part Is Done

The Industrial Boulevard section, from Evitts Creek to West Street, and the Northwest ramp at Willowbrook Road, was completed last year, and a section on Route 40 at Long Hill is to be placed under contract this week.

Mr. Funk said the SRC feels the relocation of persons displaced by the Thruway caan be solved better at the local level, since day-by-day treatments and solutions are often needed.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech pointed up one of the major current problems—what people who are affected should do.

He said the city has been getting two or three calls a day from people in the path of the Thruway asking what they should do.

Mr. Frederick said all available information will be given to persons affected, but that information can be given only to property owners personally.

Will Buy Now

He said anyone who has a question may contact the Right of Way division at the SRC offices on Braddock Road, where all information will be supplied.

He said that if the owners wish to dispose of their property now, so they can arrange to get new quarters, the SRC will buy it now instead of waiting until it is needed.

There was considerable discussion on the price being paid for property.

Mr. Funk said the SRC has established the one price offer system and is moving away from the "horse trading" plan. He stressed that property owners who are dissatisfied may hire an appraiser of their own and appeal the award, right up to the Court of Appeals.

Wants To Be Fair

He said the SRC wants to pay the fair value of each piece of property it acquires, and wants to see that each citizen gets what his property is worth.

What is paid, Mr. Frederick said, is the fair market value of a property, established by one of three methods, 1. reproduction less depreciation, 2. comparable sales and 3. capitalization or income approach.

Mr. Funk said the SRC will pay actual moving costs of any home or business displaced by the construction under a law passed by the General Assembly with the backing of the SRC.

Suggests Plan

Mr. Funk told City Engineer C. R. Nuzum that one of the approaches to finding homes for displaced families is to set up an agency to receive requests and

Honored For Brotherhood Efforts

Three prominent Allegany County citizens were honored last night at the third annual Brotherhood Banquet at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. Pictured left to right, are Herbert R. O'Conor Jr., Baltimore, principal speaker; William C. Walsh, Senator J. Glenn Beall and Morris Baron, all three of whom were honored, and Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, who was toastmaster. Mr. O'Conor, son of the former Governor and U. S. Senator, is chairman of the Maryland region of the NCCJ.

Three Honored For Efforts At Brotherhood

Several Hundred Attend Banquet

Several hundred Allegany County citizens of different religious faiths gathered last night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club to honor three outstanding men for their efforts in bringing us nearer the goal of the "Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God."

The occasion was the third annual Brotherhood Banquet of the Cumberland chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Those honored were former Judge William C. Walsh, the Catholic; U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, the Protestant, and former Magistrate Morris Baron, the Jew.

Citations were presented to the three outstanding citizens by Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, who as chairman of the dinner committee, served as toastmaster.

Brief Responses

Each man, in turn, made a brief response in which he echoed the hope that prejudices among men can be subdued.

"We live in a troubled world and perhaps never in the course of history has there been such need for tolerance and understanding among men of all colors, all beliefs and all nations," Judge Walsh said. "We are all children of Almighty God and with Him as our common Father, we are all brothers and should love and be willing to help each other."

Senator Beall emphasized in his response that despite religious differences, Protestants, Catholics and Jews share a common God. He stressed that all must unite against the common God-less foe, international Communism.

Mr. Baron, who for 14 years was spiritual leader of B'er Chayim Congregation before becoming an attorney, told a German fable about a magic ring. He said that Catholics, Protestants and Jews must all attempt to show which has the real "magic ring" by their acts of tolerance for others.

Principal speaker was Herbert R. O'Conor Jr. of Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He stressed that the conference seeks to nave persons of different faiths practice civic cooperation without compromise of their own religious beliefs.

Projects Cited

He cited specific projects which are being carried on in Maryland to encourage better understanding.

Mr. O'Conor, whose father was Governor of Maryland and later a United States Senator, stressed that the future of the world depends largely on the outcome on three under-developed continents, Africa, Asia and South America. Although most of them obtained their zeal for liberty from the earlier American revolution, many of the people on these three continents do not admire Americans.

He stressed that the United States must provide the world with spiritual leadership.

Clergymen of different faiths who participated in the program last night were Rev. John U. Lyness, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church; Rabbi Max Selinger of B'er Chayim Congregation, and Rev. Maurice D. Robertson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

Even President John F. Kennedy made a film appearance. His message to the National Conference of Christians and Jews and its affiliates was projected onto a screen in the banquet hall.

No Major Damage In Rain Storm

Winds, Lightning Hit This Section

The season's first severe thunder and electrical storm hit this section last night, but no major damage was reported other than minor flooding.

The storm moved in from the west about 6:30 p.m. and the rain started to fall shortly afterward. The temperature took a sharp drop before the main part of the storm hit about 8:45 p.m.

No major damage was reported, but lightning did strike a lightning arrestor on a transformer in the Oldtown section, causing one line to be put out of service. However, a crew from the Potomac Edison Company restored power service.

The heavy rain also caused some roads and highways to become flooded and slowed traffic in some sections.

In northern West Virginia, severe weather warnings were issued by the Weather Bureau which called for damaging winds, heavy rainfall, hail and possible tornadoes.

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford also reported that the heavy rains caused some roads to be flooded in spots.

The mercury climbed to an unofficial high of 82 degrees in downtown Cumberland yesterday, but dropped sharply 14 degrees when a rain shower moved in about 3 p.m.

Later in the evening the temperature again dipped another 10 degrees and leveled off following the heavy rain storm.

Woman Given 12 Years In Fatal Beating

Mrs. Mary Kline Tried In Romney

A 55-year-old housekeeper was sentenced yesterday afternoon to 12 years in prison for the slaying of her 87-year-old employer, Mrs. Lutie C. Kidwell of Slanesville, W. Va.

A petit jury Monday found Mrs. Mary Kline guilty of second degree murder after deliberating about 45 minutes at the end of the one day trial in Hampshire County Circuit Court in Romney.

Yesterday afternoon, Judge H. Gus Muntzing sentenced the woman to 12 years at Spence Springs, the West Virginia penitentiary for women. She is expected to begin serving the term within the next few days, authorities said.

Prosecuting Attorney Loudoun Thompson had sought a first degree conviction and a life sentence in the slaying which occurred last February.

The victim, was found lying on the floor of her kitchen, had been beaten with a blunt instrument. She died two days later in Hampshire County Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Kline who pleaded innocent, told police some men had broken into the Kidwell home and beat the elderly woman, who was nearly blind.

Testifying for the state Monday were Dr. Russell Straub of Romney, Sheriff J. M. Buckbee, Lester Kidwell, son of the victim; Lt. J. B. Baisden of the West Virginia State Police and Trooper Ralph Keaton of the state police.

W. Mease Strosnider served as foreman of the jury which included one woman.

Mrs. Kline was arrested February 19 for the fatal beating of Mrs. Kidwell who was found in a pool of blood at her home.

Robert Garrett, Financier, Dies In Baltimore

County Is Named After Grandfather

BALTIMORE (AP) — Robert Garrett, financier, philanthropist and civic leader, died Tuesday at the age of 85.

His great-grandfather, also named Robert, founded the Baltimore banking and investment house that still bears his name and was one of the pioneers responsible for the construction of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Garrett's grandfather, John W. Garrett, served many years as president of the B&O, and Maryland's westernmost county was named in his honor.

Garrett also served on the B&O board and, like his grandfather, was elected president of the local Young Men's Christian Association. He also helped bring the Boy Scouts of America to Baltimore in 1910.

Garrett won the discus throw in 1896 when the modern Olympic Games were revived. He also finished second in the broad jump and tied for second in the high jump, while representing Princeton University at the games in Athens.

He continued as an ardent exponent of physical training, and he originated and largely financed outdoor gymnasiums in Baltimore which were the forerunners of the Playground Athletic League.

For four generations, the Garrett family has been identified with the commercial and cultural development of Baltimore. Garrett's great-grandfather moved to the city shortly after the opening of the 19th Century.

A Republican, he was defeated twice as a candidate for the House of Delegates and three times for Congress, in a district that was overwhelmingly Democratic.

But he served on various commissions under both Democratic and Republican administrations.

In addition to his banking career with Robert Garrett and Co., he served as a director with various banks and business institutions.

Survivors include his widow, Katharine; two sons; Harrison, of Brooklandville, Baltimore County, and Johnson, a civilian official with NATO in Paris; four daughters, Mrs. Katharine G. Bainbridge, New Canaan, Conn., Mrs. Alice Whitridge Phillips, Sioux City, Iowa, Mrs. Ella B. G. Brigham, Saranac Lake, N. Y., and Mrs. Barbara G. Read, Baltimore; and 12 grandchildren.

SRC Chairman Briefs City On Thruway Plans

$23,000,000 Project Is Aired At Meeting

John B. Funk, chairman-director of the State Roads Commission, said here yesterday he was confident the City of Cumberland "with whatever assistance we can give" can solve problems arising from the relocation of people and businesses during the construction of the Cumberland Thruway.

He acknowledges problems will arise from the construction of the facility which will cost some $23,000,000 exclusive of right of way costs.

Will Expedite Work

Mr. Funk advised officials of the City of Cumberland, at a meeting yesterday afternoon in City Hall, that work on the Thruway be scheduled on an ever increasing tempo and that all portions will be completed or under construction by 1965.

Mr. Funk was accompanied by Roland Jones, SRC urban coordinator; John D. Bushby, District 6 engineer, and Henry F. Frederick, District 6 right of way engineer.

The City was represented by Mayor J. Edwin Keech, Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder, City Attorney William R. Carscaden and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum.

Some 16 interested citizens, including representatives of utilities, attended the meeting held in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

Outlines Schedule

Here is the current schedule of the SRC for advertising the huge Thruway program:

To be advertised this August is the contract for a bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as part of the south approach to the Thruway.

Bids will be asked in January 1962 for the Industrial Boulevard extension, which will run from West Street to Williams Street.

During the summer of 1962, the SRC plans to advertise the Overhead Bridge segment, which will run about 3,500 feet from Maryland Avenue to Johnson Street.

Scheduled for advertising between July 1963 and July 1964 is the East Extension running from Maryland Avenue to Willowbrook Road and a bridge over Kelly Boulevard.

The last section, the West Approach, running from near Smallwood Street to Route 220 is scheduled to be advertised in July 1964.

Part Is Done

The Industrial Boulevard section, from Evitts Creek to West Street, and the Northwest ramp at Willowbrook Road, was completed last year, and a section on Route 40 at Long Hill is to be placed under contract this week.

Mr. Funk said the SRC feels the relocation of persons displaced by the Thruway caan be solved better at the local level, since day-by-day treatments and solutions are often needed.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech pointed up one of the major current problems—what people who are affected should do.

He said the city has been getting two or three calls a day from people in the path of the Thruway asking what they should do.

Mr. Frederick said all available information will be given to persons affected, but that information can be given only to property owners personally.

Will Buy Now

He said anyone who has a question may contact the Right of Way division at the SRC offices on Braddock Road, where all information will be supplied.

He said that if the owners wish to dispose of their property now, so they can arrange to get new quarters, the SRC will buy it now instead of waiting until it is needed.

There was considerable discussion on the price being paid for property.

Mr. Funk said the SRC has established the one price offer system and is moving away from the "horse trading" plan. He stressed that property owners who are dissatisfied may hire an appraiser of their own and appeal the award, right up to the Court of Appeals.

Wants To Be Fair

He said the SRC wants to pay the fair value of each piece of property it acquires, and wants to see that each citizen gets what his property is worth.

What is paid, Mr. Frederick said, is the fair market value of a property, established by one of three methods, 1. reproduction less depreciation, 2. comparable sales and 3. capitalization or income approach.

Mr. Funk said the SRC will pay actual moving costs of any home or business displaced by the construction under a law passed by the General Assembly with the backing of the SRC.

Suggests Plan

Mr. Funk told City Engineer C. R. Nuzum that one of the approaches to finding homes for displaced families is to set up an agency to receive requests and

A 15 - year - old Hampshire County, W. Va., boy yesterday morning was tried in Circuit Court in Romney and found guilty of negligent homicide in the highway death of a 40-year-old Points, W. Va., man November 13, 1960.

Three Honored For Efforts At Brotherhood

Several Hundred Attend Banquet

Several hundred Allegany County citizens of different religious faiths gathered last night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club to honor three outstanding men for their efforts in bringing us nearer the goal of the "Brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God."

The occasion was the third annual Brotherhood Banquet of the Cumberland chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Those honored were former Judge William C. Walsh, the Catholic; U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall, the Protestant, and former Magistrate Morris Baron, the Jew.

Citations were presented to the three outstanding citizens by Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, who as chairman of the dinner committee, served as toastmaster.

Brief Responses

Each man, in turn, made a brief response in which he echoed the hope that prejudices among men can be subdued.

"We live in a troubled world and perhaps never in the course of history has there been such need for tolerance and understanding among men of all colors, all beliefs and all nations," Judge Walsh said. "We are all children of Almighty God and with Him as our common Father, we are all brothers and should love and be willing to help each other."

Senator Beall emphasized in his response that despite religious differences, Protestants, Catholics and Jews share a common God. He stressed that all must unite against the common God-less foe, international Communism.

Mr. Baron, who for 14 years was spiritual leader of B'er Chayim Congregation before becoming an attorney, told a German fable about a magic ring. He said that Catholics, Protestants and Jews must all attempt to show which has the real "magic ring" by their acts of tolerance for others.

Principal speaker was Herbert R. O'Conor Jr. of Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He stressed that the conference seeks to have persons of different faiths practice civic cooperation without compromise of their own religious beliefs.

Projects Cited

He cited specific projects which are being carried on in Maryland to encourage better understanding.

Mr. O'Conor, whose father was Governor of Maryland and later a United States Senator, stressed that the future of the world depends largely on the outcome on three under-developed continents, Africa, Asia and South America. Although most of them obtained their zeal for liberty from the earlier American revolution, many of the people on these three continents do not admire Americans.

He stressed that the United States must provide the world with spiritual leadership.

No Major Damage In Rain Storm

Winds, Lightning Hit This Section

The season's first severe thunder and electrical storm hit this section last night, but no major damage was reported other than minor flooding.

The storm moved in from the west about 6:30 p.m. and the rain started to fall shortly afterward. The temperature took a sharp drop before the main part of the storm hit about 8:45 p.m.

No major damage was reported, but lightning did strike a lightning arrestor on a transformer in the Oldtown section, causing one line to be put out of service. However, a crew from the Potomac Edison Company restored power service.

The heavy rain also caused some roads and highways to become flooded and slowed traffic in some sections.

In northern West Virginia, severe weather warnings were issued by the Weather Bureau which called for damaging winds, heavy rainfall, hail and possible tornadoes.

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford also reported that the heavy rains caused some roads to be flooded in spots.

The mercury climbed to an unofficial high of 82 degrees in downtown Cumberland yesterday, but dropped sharply 14 degrees when a rain shower moved in about 3 p.m.

Later in the evening the temperature again dipped another 10 degrees and leveled off following the heavy rain storm.
